WALL ST. CLOSE

Today

Not a Word of Sense.
Corn Sugar Whisky.
Marvels of the Radio.
More Senate Sunshine.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

A DEAR old lady from Sligo, wishing to pay the highest possible compliment to the wife of an editor, said, "It's the wonderful articles your husband writes, and nobody can make a word of sense out of it but himself."

PROF. EINSTEIN'S own explanation of his new scientific discovery takes twice as many words as the discovery itself, whatever it may be, and surely no one can make a word of sense out of it but himself.

CREATING your own system of geometry is the latest scientific fad. Prof. Einstein has his own geometry and works with it.

One of the new systems tells you that the angles of a triangle are not necessarily equal to two right angles.

IT REMINDS you of the 'gentlemen's game" of poker. Players were not asked to show their hands. Mr. Kabibble, asked how he came out, replied, "How could I lose?"

PROF. EINSTEIN'S new theory calls forth the interesting statement that "the energy relation between an electron and its nucleus generates an helixoidal carrier of energy. These carriers travel without axial motion. The transverse vibration inherent in these forces gives rise to the phenomena of light."

Perfectly simple. That's all that happens when you light a match.

PROHIBITION helps the makers of corn sugar, which is used in distilling a most horrible alcoholic poison called "white mule" or "third rail." The names, full of meaning, indicate that a mule's kick, a third rail's shock, or a drink of that liquid are about the same. Twenty years ago, 159,000,000 pounds of corn sugar were made. In 1927, 904,830,000 pounds were made.

THE difference in weight represents the amount used for distilling home made whisky.

Unfortunately, $24,000,000 asked for, or $2,400,000,000, could not stop private distilling.

THE radio possesses an importance and value not fully realized. You hear sailors telling of rescues at sea, or the President urging economy on the nation, or reminding you that prosperity is good only if spirituality is mixed with it.

MUSIC played in England is heard in Alaska, children wait for the hour devoted to them, and special programs are prepared for children in public schools.

To exaggerate what the radio will do for education and general enlightenment is impossible. A house without a radio set might as well be a house without a window.

THOMAS HASTINGS, who built the Public Library in New York, and got a gold medal from King George for being the best architect, has made plans to remodel the Capitol.

They will "dispel gloom, let in outside light and air."

Old gentlemen for whom the building was built did not appreciate as moderns do the importance of oxygen, and never heard of actinic rays."

DID they get along "about as well as we do, with our new fangled notions?" They did NOT. Their lives, on the average, were at least twenty years shorter than ours.

ADDITIONAL details come from Madrid concerning the attack on the Pope's representative, the papal nuncio Monsignor Frederic Tedeschini. He was shot, not dangerously wounded, while driving, two detectives accompanying him on bicycles. One of them was wounded in the leg.

THE incident does not necessarily mean that hostility to the church, such as exists in Mexico, is involved in the present Spanish rebellion. It is considered probable that the bullets were intended for another personage.

NEXT year, Pope Pius will assemble the ecumenical council of the Catholic church. It was last assembled in 1870, just before the French troops, protecting the papal state, were withdrawn and Italian troops entered Rome putting an end to the Pope's temporal power.

IT IS expected that at this council the Pope will announce an understanding with Mussolini's government, restoring temporal power to the church. It will be, however, only a shadowy power, a few acres of land added to properties already in the Vatican possessions. It will be important to the popes, releasing them from their self-imposed imprisonment in the Vatican, and facilitating the sending of ambassadors from non-Catholic states to the Vatican.

HOW strange is money, nearly all craving it, struggling for it, but few really understanding it. Our government writes its name on a piece of paper, and one cent's worth of paper immediately becomes worth ten or ten thousand dollars.

But if our government wants money, it borrows cash in the open market, paying what it must, to bankers that are its own creation.

GOVERNMENT COULD print and circulate what money it needs, instead of printing bonds, call in the non-interest bearing currency, as it calls in interest bearing bonds, at its convenience and save hundreds of millions a year in interest charges.

BANKERS will tell you such a course would mean "inflation, and if you inflate, your money loses value. We did not inflate in the war, yet our dollar was worth only fifty cents in Spain. It was below par even in China, and many out-of-the-way places.

HIGH finance will explain all that to you, as easily as Einstein explains relativity. But you

SENTENCED AS TAX CHEAT

BULLETIN.

Donald M. Houston, special agent of the Internal Revenue Bureau, testifying this afternoon in the income tax evasion case against Martin J. Grady, said that Grady had told him he was a partner in the gambling business with Police Magistrate John Orie and that the two had a joint bank account.

Milton Meyers, described by United States Attorney John D. Meyer as the "official South Side bootlegger," pleaded guilty to evading payment of income tax in Federal Court today and was sentenced to three months in the Allegheny County jail.

Shortly afterward Martin J. Grady, of the "Strip," a defendant in the rum conspiracy case, was placed on trial on a similar tax evasion charge.

PLEA CHANGE REFUSED

Attorney Arthur F. Smith sought to have Meyers' plea withdrawn, after sentence was pronounced, on the ground that the Federal prosecutor's remarks prejudiced his client, but Judge Nelson A. McVicar refused.

Meyers, by his pleas, admitted defrauding the government out of income tax amounting to $4,679.99 for 1926 and 1927.

Ralph W. Osler, special government investigator, testified Meyers had told him his profits had come from the liquor business. Since the condition was discovered, Osler added, Meyers has paid the amount due and a $1,200 penalty.

100 CARS SEIZED

United States Attorney Meyer told the court prohibition agents had seized, all told, 100 booze-laden autos belonging to Meyers.

Judge Nelson A. McVicar directed Meyers to appear before him later today for sentence.

Grady is charged with evading payment of $24,090.24 tax for the years 1924 to 1927 inclusive.

The indictment against Grady sets forth that in 1924 his income amounted to $60,909.96; in 1925, $68,671.98; in 1926, $54,874.90, and in 1927, $20,715.86; a total for the four years of $204,772.70.

Joseph A. Richardson, assistant United States attorney, told the jury in his opening address the government would show that most of Grady's income was from operation of a gambling house. Witnesses were called at the opening of the afternoon session.

CAPT. AND MRS. GEORGE FRIED

CHAUFFEUR SLUGGED, ROBBED

A young woman bandit and her male accomplice are being sought today by police and county detectives in connection with the holdup of Theodore Yacris, 28, of 33 Childs street, who was slugged and robbed of his cab in Lincoln avenue extension, Penn Township, last night.

Engaging Yacris' cab in East Liberty, the holdup couple, according to police, directed the driver to take them to a club in Penn township.

GUN IN HANDBAG

Nearing the club, the woman's accomplice ordered the driver to stop. As the passengers stepped out, the woman reached into her handbag, pulled out a revolver and ordered the driver out of his cab.

Yacris complied with her demands and was compelled to turn over his cap. After turning over his hack gear, Yacris was rendered unconscious by the girl, who struck him on the head with the butt end of the gun.

CAB RECOVERED

The couple then went through their victim's pockets, obtaining two car tokens and a dime. The cab, stolen by the pair, was found abandoned three hours later on Agnew street and Lincoln avenue.

A passerby found Yacris lying by the road and assisted him to a club, where first aid was administered. He was then taken to his home.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS CENSORING 'SOUND FILMS'

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The State Supreme Court today upheld the right of the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors to censor "sound films."

The case reached the high court when the state board appealed from the action of common pleas court which set aside the board's order of disapproval of a "sound film" because the Fox Film Company refused to submit to the board the language proposed to be spoken.

The supreme court held that:

"A sound film or a talking film must be and remain what it is—a film, until some other and far more different processes and devices than those now in use are invented. When such sound film is to be used for public exhibitions, it necessarily comes within reach of the provisions of the Act of 1915 which requires its submission before the proposed exhibition to the board of censors for examination, approval or disapproval."

FLAG CONTEST INDORSED BY NOTABLES OF CITY AND STATE

WILL BATTLE LINKED WITH OIL FIGHT

GREENWICH, Conn., Feb. 4.—(INS.)—A new and intriguing factor—oil proxies—was injected today into the bitter legal battle over the $7,000,000 fortune left by Mrs. Margaret Huntington Gowen McCarthy, Standard Oil heiress.

Attorneys for the young and suddenly-wealthy Dr. James S. McCarthy, who was left the bulk of his middle-aged wife's estate, charged that the attempt to set aside the will is a skirmish in the financial war John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is waging to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart from control of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

"PROXIES WANTED"

Attorney William L. Tierney, a former judge, was quoted as saying that the Cleveland interests protesting the will "want the proxies of the estate's holdings in Standard Oil of Indiana voted for the Stewart side—just as they have been voted for years."

Tierney intimated that the young doctor intends to use the proxies to help the cause of the Rockefellers.

It is said Tierney, one of the executors of the will in contest, will take the stand when the case is resumed Wednesday in probate court and testify that the testament was arranged by Mrs. McCarthy six days before her death, January 11.

$5,000,000 LEFT HUSBAND

The will, her fifth, left $5,000,000 to her young doctor-husband, an alumnus of Yale, and cut off her first-born daughter, Margaret Gowen, with $200,000.

Lawyers for Miss Gowen and trustees of Western Reserve University, parties trying to break the will, alleged Mrs. McCarthy signed it 48 hours before pneumonia ended her life.

Mrs. McCarthy's mother sided with Col. Stewart, it was said, and Dr. McCarthy, who has become a millionaire as a result of the will, is pictured as in sympathy with the Rockefellers in the big oil fight that is to culminate in a "show-down" of the proxies at a meeting of stockholders in Whiting, Ind., on March 7.

OIL STOCK ACTIVE

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—Standard Oil of Indiana stock was active and erratic today on the New York Stock Exchange, on the eve of the closing of the fight between John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Robert W. Stewart for control of the company, 24,700 shares being traded over during the first hour of trading.

Miss Shiras, Miss DeMarest and Dr. Edmundson intend spending several weeks among the old Aztec and Toltec ruins and then go on to Mexico City, where further plans will be made.

SAME OLD LINDY AT 27 AS ON DAY OF PARIS HOP

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is 27 years old today.

America's beloved "Lone Eagle" celebrated his birthday by inaugurating a Florida-to-Panama air mail service. He hopped off from Miami this morning for Cristobal, Canal Zone, across the Caribbean Sea.

"Lindy" flies on—blazing new trails. No thought of his personal safety, but fired with the unquenchable spirit which carried him through on that non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

CAN WE FORGET?

Who of this generation will ever forget that historic achievement? What reporter, whose privilege it was to witness the scene, will ever cease to recall that memorable morning at Roosevelt Field—May 20, 1927—when this slim, blonde, bronze-faced youth jumped into the cockpit of his plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," and with a smile said casually:

"Well, we're off."

And the thrill that swept the world as he sped over the Atlantic Ocean for his goal!

Would he make it?

And the news flashing back from France that he had landed at Le Bourget Field, Paris!

He had made it—in 33 hours and 29 minutes.

IDOL OF MILLIONS

"I am Charles Lindbergh," he said, as he crowled out of the cockpit.

As if they didn't know!

All the adulation of idolizing millions did not change this modest youth a whit. Over night he became the symbol of American youth and manhood.

No movie offers could tempt him. He would accept only one reward for his great flight—the prize of $25,000 for the first man to accomplish the feat. He refused to be exploited.

He would do nothing that would not, in a dignified honorable way, promote the advancement of aviation." That was Lindbergh's announced ambiton once he became internationally famous, and he has adhered to it to this day.

BLAZED NEW TRAILS

Since his epic Paris flight, he has blazed new trails, and he probably will continue to do so until he dies. He flew to Mexico and to South America as a "good will ambassador." He was the first man ever to fly over the towering peaks of the Andes Mountains. He has flown to almost every nook and corner of the United States in the interest of the promotion of Aeronautics.

Lindbergh was born at Detroit, February 4, 1902. He went to grammar school in Washington soon after his father's election to Congress from Little Falls, Minn. In 1918 he was graduated from the Little Falls High School. Then he matriculated at the Mechanical Engineering School of the University of Wisconsin. In 1922 he quit the college course and enrolled in a flying school at Lincoln, Neb. He made "barnstorming" trips with other aviators and finally bought his own plane at Americus, Ga.

He enlisted as a flying cadet at Brooks Field, Tex., in November, 1925. When he completed his training he enlisted in the Missouri National Guard and was commissioned a first lieutenant. Subsequently he became one of the country's finest air mail pilots. And then, before the nation hardly had heard of him, he showed up at Roosevelt field with his "Spirit of St. Louis."

And how "We" became famous is history.

"Lindy" on his twenty-seventh birthday finds himself perhaps the most-talked-of man in the world, a credit to himself and to his country.

COUNTY LIQUOR AND GAMBLING TRIALS OPEN

The first of 12 defendants charged with maintaining gambling devices and with illegal sale of liquor go on trial today in Criminal Court. This is the week's program mapped out by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner in the prosecution of the cases brought to light by the grand jury investigation. He plans to bring up two cases each day.

Judge James B. Drew is expected to be in court today and it is believed that he will sentence the three alleged operators of the Louisiana State lottery. They are Henry Recker, James Murray and Mrs. Mary Shaffer.

One of the important cases this week will be that of Justice of the Peace John F. Smith, of Fayette township, who has been indicted on a bribery charge.

Col. Lindbergh plans to return to Miami by plane on February 13. Before leaving today Lindbergh was hesitant about revealing his future plans, and intimated that he would have nothing to say upon his return from Panama.

MUM ON CABINET RUMOR

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew South today with the air mail, leaving unanswered behind him a flock of reports that he would become secretary in the Department of Commerce after March 4.

Col. Lindbergh was a luncheon guest of the Hoovers yesterday at Belle Isle. He had "nothing to say" about the reports. Mr. Hoover was equally uncommunicative.

Col. Lindbergh became a mail pilot again today—his twenty-seventh birthday—to blaze the trail for the Pan-American air mail service.

Rising early, "Slim" piloted a giant Sikorsky amphibian plane from Miami with the first load of mail for Cristobal, Canal Zone. Accompanied by Henry Lee Buskey, radio operator; Col. John A. Hambleton, and J. T. Trippe, of the Pan-American Aircraft Corporation, he hopped off for Havana at 6:08 a. m.

DROPS ONE PASSENGER

Mr. Trippe left the plane at Havana before the hop-off from the Cuban capital for Belize, British Honduras, where Lindbergh, Buskey and Col. Hambleton will spend the night. Tomorrow Lindbergh will continue on to Managua, Nicaragua, where, after another night's rest, the flight to Cristobal will be made.

An overnight accumulation of mail brought the load to more than 500 pounds.

2,327 MILES TRAVEL

The Florida-Panama mail route entails a distance of 2,327 miles which, according to airways officials here, will be flown in two days, saving 13 days on the present mode of travel.

Opening of the Miami-Panama airplane service today follows the inauguration last month of the Pan-American Railway's West Indies service from Miami to San Juan, Porto Rico.

PITTSBURGHER SCORES JOHN D IN OIL FIGHT

While many Pittsburgh holders of stock in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana have been watching with interest the fight to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the company, Louis Boreman, of the Boreman Drug Company, has been the first to publicly announce himself against such action.

Boreman, holder of 6,200 shares of Standard Oil Company of Indiana stock, let it be known yesterday that he would send his proxy to Col. Stewart for voting of this stock at the annual meeting of the company in Chicago, March 7. Boreman also sent a telegram to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., explaining his action and asking that the board of directors send copies of the telegram to every stockholder.

WOULD HURT COMPANY

Boreman defends his stand on the ground that the resignation of all of the leading executives of the company, in the event Col. Stewart loses his battle with Rockefeller, probably would seriousy affect the general standing of the company.

By leaving the country, Mr. Rockefeller made it impossible for stockholders to communicate with him, Mr. Boreman said.

"Since you decided to try to remove Col. Robert Stewart, it was your duty to the stockholders of the Standard Oil of Indiana, which includes myself, to at least stay here and give us a chance to ask you why you make a serious move of this kind," Mr. Boreman stated in the telegram.

Mr. Boreman cited the good management of Mr. Stewart and inquired of Mr. Rockefeller whether it was his (Mr. Rockefeller's) plan to inform the stockholders how he intended to replace such good management.

"There is no wisdom like frankness and to be perfectly frank, I am compelled to say in this message to you that I think your action is ill-advised and, I should say, dangerous, as far as other stockholders are concerned. I shall promptly send to Col. Robert Stewart my proxy for 6,200 shares because I want him to know just as soon as possible how seriously I look upon this situation," Boreman wrote.

JOHN D. GETS AID

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Col. Robert W. Stewart today each had an additional recruit from the ranks of the stockholders in their battle of proxies for control of the management of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

At the same time the shadow of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, nemesis of the Teapot Dome conspirators, fell across Stewart's path with a reminder of the Continental Trading Company bonds.

Frank D. Brewer, president of the Glen Ridge (N. J.) Trust Company, announced his decision to give his proxies to Rockefeller. He said he owned only a small amount of the stock. With the announcement, although not saying whether it influenced his decision, Brewer made public a letter from Senator Walsh in which Walsh expressed surprise that some stockholders of the company had not brought suit to compel the payment by Stewart of what the Senator said was due the company from him in interest on unclipped coupons from Continental Trading Company bonds.

INDORSE NATIONAL FLAG CONTEST

DR. JOHN A. H. KEITH — Dr. Keith, Superintendent of Public Instruction in Pennsylvania;

MRS. ENOCH RAUH — Mrs. Rauh, director of the Department of Public Welfare, City of Pittsburgh, and

MAYOR CHARLES KLINE — Mayor Kline, all of whom indorse the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Flag Contest. Rules are announced today on this page.

Today's Flagism

Horace Greeley, one of the outstanding figures in American journalism, was born on February 3, 1811. Greeley's memorable bit of advice, "Go West, young man," was followed literally by thousands of youths in the pioneering era. Likewise the American Flag continued its westward sweep until it embraced the whole territory between the Atlantic and the Pacific. It has since continued to stand as the symbol of progress, liberty and enlightenment.

FLAG CONTEST WINNERS GET WORLD TRIP

One week from today there will appear in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph the first of a series of questions about the Flag of the United States that boys and girls all over the country will want to answer in an effort to win the greatest award ever offered in any contest—a free trip around the world. Other awards, for runners-up, include free trips to Washington and other patriotic shrines.

There will be 75 of these questions, published intermittently for three weeks, and they will form a part of the First Annual Flag Contest of the United States Flag Association, sponsored by the Hearst Newspapers, first announcement of which was made in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph yesterday. The other part of the contest consists of writing an essay, entitled "Old Glory's Greatest Glory," of such a length that it can be recited in five minutes or less.

RULES OF CONTEST

Here, in condensed form, are the rules governing the Flag Contest:

1. The Contest is open to all boys and girls in the United States, regardless of race, creed or color, between the ages of 14 and 18, on Flag Day, June 14, this year, provided they, or their parents or guardians, are not employed by any Hearst Newspaper or Hearst Newspaper organiza-

Texas Co-ed Missing, 'Human Fish' Accused

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Miss Fannie Lee Minter, 16-year-old University of Texas co-ed, has been missing since last Tuesday and her parents believe she is either in Mexico or on a ship bound for South America with a man they suspect of luring her from home.

Mrs. T. I. Minter, the girl's mother, socially prominent here, has referred the matter to San Antonio federal officers, and filed charges against Jack Griffith, alias Freith, a local swimming instructor, called "the human fish."

don't understand the explanation.

Britain is on a gold basis, solid as a rock, yet last week the virtuous pound sterling fell to the lowest point, with one exception, since 1926, when strikes crippled British industry.

AMERICAN financiers bought $25,000,000 gold from Britain. Low sterling exchange facilitated that, and Britain grieved.

High finance sometimes imitates wolves that gayly eat a wounded comrade.

WHEN the Federal Reserve Bank was suggested high finance protested, saying it would bring ruin. Now these financiers tell you the federal reserve has saved and will save the country from panics.

THIS, the richest country in the world, is on a usury basis, business men paying seven per cent for money and more, stock investors paying up to twelve per cent.

In France, "impoverished by the war," business borrows all it needs at four per cent and less.

KEITH URGES SCHOOLS TO TAKE PART

Dr. John A. H. Keith, Pennsylvania superintendent of public instruction; Mayor Charles H. Kline and Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the city department of public welfare, are among many prominent citizens of the city and state who have lauded the Sun-Telegraph's flag contest.

"I am going to bring the Flag Contest plan of the United States Flag Association to the attention of the school people of this state," Dr. Keith declared. "I believe the undertaking possesses such merit and so fits into the work of the schools that many of our teachers and school officials will wish to take part."

Mayor Kline said that "the flag symbolizes liberty, freedom, equal opportunities and all of those inestimable gifts for which so much blood has been shed and sacrifice made."

"A flag contest such as this," he continued, "which teaches the history of the flag and its traditions, thereby impressing the minds of American ideals and institutions, is a patriotic movement that is certainly worth while."

Mrs. Rauh said:

"I commend highly the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Flag Contest. The idea is an inspirational one and I believe the educational value is beyond compare. The contest will instill patriotism in the hearts of the contestants and will arouse general widespread interest in our glorious national emblem."

ANTI-BLUE LAW BILL PUSHED

Wilmer M. Jacoby was to leave for Harrisburg today where tomorrow he will present to the State Assembly a bill to modify the blue laws of 1794.

A report on the constitutionality of the proposed bill will be made tonight by John H. Fertig, assistant secretary of the legislative reference bureau.

When the bill is presented tomorrow, a request will be made that the hearing on the proposed act be held February 19.

Col. A. W. Wyckoff, who was elected president of the blue law modification organization here, asked for the delay hearing.

Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan, pastor of Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, in his sermon last night asserted that people who believe they can modify the Sunday laws and yet eliminate commercialism are easily deceived.

"The whole proposition will be fought, not because we are bigots nor Sunday joy killers, but because we know that Sunday sports bring Sunday business, and both tend to substitute for a genuinely American institution, the continental Sunday, which is foreign to our Constitution and our flag," Dr. Duncan said.

QUERIES OTHER STATES

HARRISBURG, Feb. 4.—Representative M. A. Musmanno, Pittsburgh, who is sponsoring a bill in the Legislature to let the people pass on the question of Sunday amusements, today sent telegrams to attorney generals of all states in the Union to determine the status of Sunday laws in the country. Musmanno's bill provides that upon petition of 15 per cent of the eligible voters the matter of Sunday amusements could be voted on in counties, cities, boroughs or townships.

"My bill would not repeal the blue laws," Musmanno said. "It would permit the people to vote on it. This is a privilege I think they are entitled to."

SENATE MAY VOTE BILL FOR 15 CRUISERS TODAY

LEGISLATORS OPEN FIRE ON STATE WELFARE BODY

COOLIDGE TIME LIMIT PLEA HELD LOST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The Senate approached a vote today on the bill to increase the Navy by 15 cruisers and an airplane carrier.

Passage of the measure, either late today or tomorrow, was predicted by friend and foe and the fight was centered on the appeal of President Coolidge for elimination of the clause requiring that all the ships be started before July 1, 1931.

Two weeks of debate have been given over principally to this issue with such administration leaders as Senator Watson, Indiana; Fess, Ohio, and Hale, Me., opposing the Coolidge demand which was turned down by the House. The President wants full control over the program.

DEBATE CURTAILED

Debate today ws curtailed under the agreement entered into last week at the request of Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican leader, and after 4 p. m. no senator could speak more than 10 minutes on the measure.

Voting on the stack of amendments is expected to get under way soon after 4 o'clock. The Coolidge amendment is drawing most attention but foes of the bill also are prepared to ask for a paring down of the authorization from 15 to 10 or to five cruisers.

Chairman Hale, of the naval committee, supported by Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking Democrat of the committee, is confident of passage of the bill in virtually the same form it was approved a year ago by the House. These two senators maintain that the request of President Coolidge would give the Navy only "paper ships."

$274,000,000 INVOLVED

Senators Hale, Fess and Watson contend that the 15 cruisers are vital for replacements and even if another arms conference were held these ships would be necessary and would not be touched by any limitation. Therefore, they want it mandatory that building be commenced within two years.

The entire program involves $274,000,000, to be spread over two and a half years. If the authorization is finally approved it is expected an attempt will be made at this session to appropriate some money for a start.

AIM TO ABOLISH DEPARTMENT REPORTED

By W. I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 4.—Reports that an effort may be made this session to abolish the Department of Welfare caused considerable discussion among the members of the Legislature arriving here today for the session which reconvenes at 8 o'clock tonight.

The origin of the report seems to be a mystery, but it has gained sufficient ground to be one of the principal topics of conversation. The fact that it follows reports later officially denied, that Mrs. E. S. H. McCauley, head of the department, would be asked to resign, gave it added significance.

Although those connected with the Fisher administration discounted the rumors, a number of members expressed themselves in sympathy with the plan. The greatly increasing cost of the department also attracted the attention of legislators. Created in 1921, the cost has mounted from $21,298,000 in that biennium to an estimated total of $35,377,500 for the next two years. Abolition of the department was urged at a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor.

RECEPTION IS LURE

As the legislators assembled today, predictions were made that adjournment this week will not be until Wednesday. Since the start of this session, most of the members have been coming in Monday and disappearing toward their homes Tuesday afternoon, getting five cents a mile each way in addition to their $3,000 salary and $150 worth of stamps. The reason for staying until Wednesday this week is not a sudden urge to be about the public business but because the Governor is giving a reception Tuesday night, attendance at which will keep most of them here until the next day.

At the start of the sixth week of the session, not a single measure has been approved or defeated and only 44 measures appear on the calendars, 22 in each house. Leading the list in importance as far as Pittsburgh is concerned, is the bill of Senator William D. Mansfield that would permit the voters of the city to vote on a proposal to increase the pay of policemen and firemen. This is on second reading.

Several Allegheny county bills on the House calendar, including the Marcus bill, increasing the number and salaries of the assistants in the office of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner. Another Marcus salary raiser, that increasing the pay of tipstaves in the Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions courts, also is on the calendar. Both are on second reading.

NAVY RESOLUTION UP

Action may come tonight on a resolution urging Congress to improve the naval construction program. This resolution, introduced by George F. Howe, of Clinton last week at the request of the American Legion, declares that the program should be adopted on the original time limit so that the country may have "steel ships instead of paper ships."

Auditor General Edward Martin also is expected to make his report tonight to the Talbot resolution which requested a list of delinquent in sending their gasoline tax collections. This may bring up the question of the gasoline tax. One bill making the emergency 2 cent tax permanent—which would make a permanent three-cent tax as at present—is in committee. A four-cent gasoline tax bill has appeared, although it would be impossible to amend the other measure. Administration leaders reiterated today that the leaders have not decided to support such a tax.

BRAHM MARKET TO BE MOVED

The Simon Brahm Son market property in the arcade at 217 Fourth avenue and 6 Diamond square, has been sold, Harry Brahm told the Sun-Telegraph today. The Brahms have purchased the John J. Dillon market property at 204 First avenue, and will move their business to the new address within 30 days.

An unverified report put the Brahm property price at $250,000. The building is a two-story brick. The Dillon property is a four-story brick. The Brahm property was bought in the name of John Fleming. A John Fleming is listed in the city directory as an employe of Donahoe's, Incorporated.

Mayor Vetoes Zone District Change

Mayor Charles H. Kline today transmitted to Council a letter vetoing an ordinance changing property at the end of a lot fronting 65 feet on Mellon street and 50 feet on Liberty way from a "B" residence and a first-area district to a commercial and a third-area district.

The Mayor's reason was that the ordinance violated the spirit of the zoning law by granting special privileges and creating a special use district for a single lot.

RICH WIDOW'S ESTATE SHORT $800,000

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—Stepdaughters of Mrs. Selma Burnham, whose death is being investigated here, may demand an accounting today of $800,000 said to be missing from the $1,000,000 estate of their father, Sanford A. Burnham, slot machine manufacturer, who died in July.

Edward T. Riley, appraisal engineer, who was accused of having given Mrs. Burnham liniment to drink and of having thrown her out of her own home after forcing her to sign papers turning the entire estate over to him, was expected to defend his conduct of the estate.

The two daughters of Burnham who are expected to demand an accounting of the estate are Mrs. Josephine Burnham Gowers, of Chicago, and Mrs. Isabelle Burnham Ballard, of Detroit, a school teacher.

BROWN, BANKS' HEAD, TRIAL UNDER WAY

A jury was being picked in Federal Court today to hear the case against Guy W. Brown, of South Aiken avenue, banker and former state Senator from Fayette County, who is charged with embezzling and misapplying $137,000 Fayette City National Bank and the First National Bank of Webster funds. Actual prosecution, before Judge R. M. Gibson, was scheduled to start tomorrow.

The government is represented in the case by Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh and the defense counsel is Attorney William G. Heiner. The banks crashed 18 months ago. For many months special accountants of the bureau of investigation, Department of Justice, have been carrying on an investigation of the affairs of the banks.

Later Brown and his brother, Jesse R. Brown, also an official of the Fayette City bank, will be tried on a joint indictment, charging misapplication of the bank funds. In one of the indictments, Guy Brown is charged with misapplication of deposits of the Home Mission Fund of the Redstone Presbytery in the Webster bank, which government authorities said was more than $25,000.

Citizens Want Chief At Glendale Ousted

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner today is investigating charges of neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming an officer against Frank Nutbrown, of Carothers avenue, Glendale, chief of police in Glendale and constable of Scott Township, in a petition which asks Nutbrown's removal.

The petition is signed by two-score residents of the township. The petition says Nutbrown is now under two-year parole for assault and battery on his wife, and that he has been held for court recently in an alleged attack upon a Glendale man.

FAMILY NOT PAID, CHILDS SAYS, IN RESTAURANT WAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—William Childs, chairman of the Childs Company restaurant chain, announced that he had voluntarily reduced his salary 40 per cent, and that his immediate relatives, recently elected to executive positions in the company, will serve without pay until further notice. The development is a phase of the controversy raging over the management of the company, in which a group of stockholders are endeavoring to oust the Childs family from control.

Laird Bissel & Meeds, Tucker Anthony & Co., Leroy W. Baldwin and W. A. Barber, the latter formerly counsel for Childs & Co., in a signed statement, being sent to stockholders of Childs & Co., say:

"We, as a group, are the largest holders of common stock of the Childs company. We purchased from William Childs, in November, 1928, nearly all the common stock he held.

"The recent election of his brother, Luther Childs, as president and the election of two members of the Childs family as directors, made at instigation of William Childs, were, we believe, contrary to William Childs' written agreement with us that he would endeavor to have Luther Childs resign as director and that he himself would retire as president and general manager.

"The reason we insisted upon and still insist upon an arrangement that Mr. Childs and his immediate family retire from control of active management of Childs & Co. is that we believe his policies of management have not been and are not in the best interests of stockholders of the company.

"The next annual meeting occurs March 7, 1929. Before that date we will request proxies of stockholders to join in election of a new board of representative directors who will restore competent officers and have the business of the company operated in the interest of its stockholders."

All Marriages For 5 Years in Mexico Invalid

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Thousands of Mexicans and foreigners who were married in Mexico during the five-year period beginning in 1913, today found themselves in a perplexing situation as the result of the decision of the Supreme Court declaring such marriages invalid. The decision has created a sensation here.

It was based on a decree by the late President Carranza, declaring all civil acts under the governments of Victoriano Huerta, Emiliano Xapata and the so-called Conventionist governments illegal because these governments were unconstitutional. The court upheld this edict.

The Carranza decree also declared invalid marriages contracted in the states of Oaxaca and Yucatan under neutral governments during the period in which Huerta and Xapata and the Conventionists held sway here.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Joe Sugarrich is in the Ebensburg jail for the alleged murder of his brother-in-law, Olinta Grazini, at South Fork, near Johnstown, early yesterday.

Sugarrich, according to police, borrowed the revolver from Grazini, and when he is alleged to have threatened to shoot Grazini, police said Grazini drew himself erect as a target, thinking Sugarrich was joking.

AIMEE'S JURY CHIEF OFFERS "EXPOSE"

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—Asserting that "he knew enough to warrant an entire reopening of the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnaping case," William H. Carter, foreman of the 1926 grand jury, today was scheduled to testify before the legislative committee investigating the $2,500 "love offering" given to Judge Carlos S. Hardy by the Angelus Temple.

ORMISTON TO APPEAR

Although the investigation is being made to determine whether or not there are sufficient grounds upon which to impeach Judge Hardy, the unsolved mystery of the kidnaping of the hotel evangelist has played a major part in the hearings.

Kenneth Ormiston, former Angelus Temple radio operator and one of the central figures in the kidnaping episode, also is expected to appear before the investigators today.

AIMEE IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 4.—(INS.)—Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, was in Vancouver today after a hurried but somewhat secretive trip from California. She is to conduct religious meetings here.

JAMES J. DAVIS MAY BE KEPT IN CABINET

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—President-elect Hoover is concentrating this week on some of the problems ahead of him, including cabinet appointments, legislative affairs and administration policies.

The probabilities are that Mr. Hoover will retain seven of the Coolidge cabinet, at least during the early days of his administration.

There have been capital reports that Secretaries Jardine and Dwight Davis, of the War Department, and James J. Davis, of the Labor Department, will be reappointed, as well as Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury. There still is speculation as to whether Postmaster General New will be continued in his post.

The New York Times is quoted as announcing, today, in a dispatch from Washington, that it had learned from unquestioned sources of authority that Henry L. Stimson, of New York, now governor-general of the Philippines, had been offered and has accepted the position of Secretary of State in the Hoover cabinet.

A dispatch from San Francisco said that the Examiner declared it had learned that Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University, would take a temporary place in President Hoover's cabinet as Secretary of the Interior and that he later was to be named secretary of a new department, that of education and public welfare.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Hoover had as luncheon guests, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, T. T. C. Gregory, of San Francisco, Mrs. A. T. Hert, of Kentucky, vice chairman of the Republican National committee, and Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of Pittsburgh. The gathering was an entirely social one.

Incidently one of the latest reports about appointments for the new administration is that Col. Lindbergh will be named assistant Secretary of Commerce in charge of aviation, a post now held by William P. McCracken.

RUSSIAN GRAND DUKE HERE, HAS NO HOPE OF MONARCHY

Grand Duke Alexander of Russia, cousin of the former Czar Nicholas II and kinsman of King George of England, in Pittsburgh today, sees no probability of restoration of monarchy in his country, but hopes spiirtual regeneration of the Russian people will free them from the tentacles of Bolshevism.

"A world-wide awakening to spiritual things exemplified by a cultivation of brotherly love is the only certain move for realization of international peace. The practice of brotherhood alone will save the Russian people from the low level to which they have fallen." Alexander declared in his suite in the Hotel Schenley.

He is making a tour of America, he said, to preach his religion of spiritual revival and brotherly love. He spoke today before the Twentieth Century Club.

Tonight he will be the guest at a dinner in his honor at the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

Under the Bolshevik regime, Russia is going from bad to worse, he said, characterizing the Soviet government as impractical and asserting it eventually will sink all classes to the low level of education and morality.

FARMERS FIGHT ICE FLOES TO SAVE FLIERS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—John McMillan, test pilot of the St. Louis Aircraft Corporation, and Garland Morgan, superintendent of the company, were rescued late last night, five hours after they had made a forced landing in their Cardinal monoplane on a sand bar off Garbaret Island, in the middle of the Mississippi River, three miles north of St. Louis.

Neither McMillan, pilot of the plane, nor Morgan was injured and the plane was not badly damaged. The men were rescued by police officers of Venice, Ill., and farmers residing on the island who battled ice floes for several hours to reach the stranded men. They were taken to Granite City, Ill., in a boat.

McMillan said he was forced to land because of a clogged gasoline pipe line. They were flying from Parks Field, Ill., to Lambert-St. Louis field, and were over St. Louis when the trouble developed. McMillan attempted to coast to the island, but was unable to reach it and struck the sand bar. Their shouts attracted residents of the tiny island who notified police and the rescue work was begun.

U. S. TO PRINT MUSMANNO BOOK ABOUT CONSTITUTION

Work of printing and distributing throughout the libraries, courts and schools of the country State Representative M. A. Musmanno's "Proposed Amendments to the Constitution," is to be started soon, following unanimous adoption of the book by congress as a government document.

The resolution provides for the printing and distribution of 5,000 copies. The book treats of 2,600 attempts to modify, expand and curtail the working of the Federal constitution, and has been described as an invaluable aid to legislators, attorneys and statesmen of the country.

Five years were required for Musmanno to complete the work, during which he read through 40 years of the Congressional Record and more than 100 books dealing with the history of the times in which the amendments were introduced, debated and voted upon.

FIRST MODERN BOOK

Musmanno's is the only book of its kind in existence. Prof. H. V. Ames, of the University of Pennsylvania, in 1889 published his work, which treated with the 1,300 constitutional amendments introduced during the first 100 years of Congress and brought the subject down to the end of the Fiftieth Congress.

Since then, however, in a space of 36 years, 1,400 constitutional amendments have been introduced—100 more than were proposed in 100 years. Musmanno's book fully analyzes, gives the historical background and disposition of each of the 1,400 resolutions introduced since 1889.

ONLY 19 ADOPTED

Musmanno pointed out that it might be encouraging to those who are alarmed at the aggressions on the Constitution to remember that of the 2,600 attempts to amend the Constitution, only 19 amendments were adopted. There must be something intrinsically remarkable and impregnable about such a document, he said.

In his book, which, when printed, will cover about 400 pages, Musmanno gives special attention to the four amendments which have been adopted since 1889, and traces the history of income tax, popular senatorial elections, prohibition and woman suffrage, as connected with national legislation.

He was rushed to the Washington Hospital, but died in the emergency room before an operation could be performed.

REAL ESTATE BOARD HOLDS BANQUET

The seventeenth annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, held Saturday night in the Hotel Schenley, was attended by more than 400 real estate men and their guests. It was the largest gathering in the history of the board.

Radio and its possibilities for bringing the entire world into closer understanding was discussed by United States Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington. He spoke of the general movement toward world peace, and predicted the passage of the cruiser bill.

"Senator" Edward Ford contributed to the humor of the evening. George E. Meyers was toastmaster. The opening remarks were made by J. W. Cree, Jr., president of the board. The Rev. Dr. Albert Edward Day offered the invocation.

Charles Waldschmidt, city solicitor, represented Mayor Charles A. Kline with an address of welcome. Members of City Council were guests of honor. The Pennsylvania Real Estate Association was represented by W. Edwin Blair, president, and William H. Hay, secretary. E. C. Brainerd was chairman of the committee which arranged the banquet.

The Greater Evil By Jimmy Hatlo

1,000,000 Drug Toll in United States, Elenore Meherin Reveals

Elenore Meherin, famous writer of serials for the Hearst newspapers, author of "Chickie," "Ann," "Nora Lee" and other stories, has turned her attention to the problem of "dope" in this country and has written three profound articles on the subject—of which the following is the first.

In these articles she warns the people of this country against an evil beside which the problems of prohibition enforcement are small indeed. She traces the "bindle" and the "snow" up from the poor crazed addict in the street to the big dealers in and out of THIS country, and places the guilt square on the great countries of Europe that profit by the misery of 1,000,000 American men, women and children.

The great ability of Miss Meherin, to please and to interest her millions of readers, is here placed at the service of suffering humanity, and the "dope" problem is illuminated as never before.

By ELENORE MEHERIN

A TIDAL WAVE of poison, rising yearly and flooding America from coast to coast—

One million victims, drawn chiefly from the nation's youth; sucked to a living death—

And nothing—or so little that it amounts to nothing—done to save them—

This is the "dope" situation as it exists in the United States at the beginning of 1929. And this is the situation as crystallized, not in the flashy phrases of a newspaper writer, but in cold government reports.

Here are the plain, appalling facts:

The United States today ranks second only to China and India as the world's largest per capita user of deadly narcotics.

The nations of the old world which profit enormously through the drug traffic are using this country as in the past they used China, a rich and insatiable market for their surplus opium—a market among whose millions of people is an ever-growing number of addicts willing to pay high for doom.

$50,000,000 Just Part Of Smugglers' Profit

In the six months just concluded, contraband drugs valued from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 are known to have been smuggled into the United States. This is the testimony of United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle. The known contraband, colossal as it is, is but a fraction of the prohibited narcotics in transit.

This huge, illicit cargo of poison has but one destination, the addict; ready-made or to-be-made; and but one fruit, crime.

Ten years ago the narcotics evil was so alarming that a special committee of investigation was appointed by the United States Secretary of the Treasury.

An extract from its report says:

"The committee is of the opinion that the total number of addicts probably exceeds 1,000,000 at the present time. . . . The range of ages of addicts was reported as from 12 to 75 years. The large majority of addicts of all ages was reported as using morphine or opium or its preparations. . . . Most of the heroin addicts are comparatively young, a portion of them being boys and girls under the age of 20. This is also true of cocaine addicts."

Mark the last two sentences: "Heroin addicts are young—under 20. True, also, of cocaine addicts."

Heroin Most Deadly In Effect on Youths

Heroin is the most vicious of the opium derivatives—the one that appeals to the reckless spirit of youth. Try anything once! And it is the most inexorable in the swiftness of its habit formation. In three months of even fitful indulgence the habit is fatally fixed; the boy or girl who takes the first shot for the thrill of it is definitely finished.

A survey of the addicts in prison bears eloquent testimony to the treasury report. The women addicts are often pitifully young. Often they are educated They are sometimes even brilliant. No class is immune from a habit that can be so readily formed, nor from a traffic that is the easiest and most profitable illicit business in the world. Diamonds selling at the price of pebbles would have no readier market than "dope," wherever, however and whenever it is peddled.

Rapid Increase Noted In Number of Addicts

In the ten years since the treasury committee made its report conditions have steadily grown worse. The number of addicts committed to penal institutions and sanitariums has increased from approximately 6 or 7 per cent in 1919 to 60 per cent of criminals incarcerated in 1927. And 200,000 recorded addicts in New York City alone.

These are the findings for the year 1927 by the New

MOVIES' GUM-CHEWING INDIAN FLAPPER TELLS ALL SHE KNOWS ABOUT STARS

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.

FAMOUS GOSSIP FIRST-LINES: "I'll tell you all the dirt, but if you say I told I'll swear I never did...."

SENORITA :-: AND :-: AMERICANO

Lupe Velez and Gary Cooper as they appear in a coming Paramount production, "The Wolf Song." Judging by the evidence of the scene, Senorita Velez has a role that is familiar to her, that of a woman of her own nationality. Mr. Cooper may be a gringo and then again he may be one of those guys addicted to chili and frijoles.

Desert Inspires Style Colors, Ree Says

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—The California desert is to be inspiration for some of the well-dressed women of the world in the important matter of color for spring and summer costumes, according to a fashion dispatch from celluloid Hollywood.

Couturiers have captured some of the gorgeous pastels of the yucca plant, the cacti, the adobe soil, the lupin, the red clay and the mesquite, and have transformed them into exquisite fabrics of the mode, which ranges from thin chiffons to thick pile velours.

Max Ree, movie expert in feminine wearing apparel, sees in the American desert tones the possibilities for almost revolutionizing the entire color market.

Squire Faces Probe In Cigaret Fines

Shopkeepers of Wilkinsburg and Swissvale who were fined by Justice of the Peace James Joyce, of Wall, for the alleged sale of cigarets to minors, will visit the county detective bureau today and with the squire present, they will be questioned by District Attorney Samuel H. THE SAFETY OF THE NEW FORD

SAFETY, comfort, reliability, economy, speed, acceleration, beauty—these are the features that make the new Ford such a good value. Of all, there is none more important than SAFETY.

The safety of the new Ford comes not only from its efficient brakes, but from many other factors. Among these are ease of steering and control, the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, and the sturdy, balanced construction of the car. This includes the enduring quality of mechanical parts as well as the structural strength of the body.

A particularly interesting feature of the Ford car is the manner in which electric welding has been carried forward to new usefulness through the creation and development of hundreds of special machines.

Electric welding gives simplicity and strength

This very important and increasingly valuable tool of modern manufacturing makes it possible to use one-piece units instead of several parts riveted or bolted together, with resulting gain in strength and simplicity.

Electric welding also permits the use of steel forgings instead of castings or stampings without increase in weight or greatly increased cost.

Steel forgings are used not only in the front axle, steering gear, transmission, clutch, drive shaft and rear axle housing of the new Ford, but in the shock absorber parts, the emergency brake lever, the torque tube flange and everywhere else where great strength is required. The strength of forgings makes for unusual safety.

Another safety factor worth noting is the manner in which the new Ford holds the road at all speeds. This is due to the low center of gravity, the carefully planned balance or distribution of structural and mechanical weight, and the low ratio of unsprung weight to sprung weight. The co-ordinated action of the transverse springs and Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers controls exaggerated bouncing.

Beauty and utility are combined in unusual degree in the new Ford. Shown here is the Ford Coupe—an especially good car for the woman driver because it is so safe and reliable and easy to control.

All six brakes are fully enclosed

One of the outstanding features of the new Ford, of course, is its mechanical, internal-expanding six-brake system. This is unusually reliable and effective because the surfaces of all six brakes are fully enclosed. There is no possibility of water, dirt or oil interfering with brake action under any condition.

The silence of these brakes is another thing you will appreciate. Screeching and groaning have been eliminated by a special self-centering action—an exclusive Ford development which brings the entire surface of the brake shoe in uniform contact with the drum the instant you press your foot on the pedal.

The value of the protection afforded by the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield of the new Ford is shown by a recent survey indicating that 65% of injuries in automobile accidents are due to flying glass. The windshield in the new Ford is so made that it will not shatter under the hardest impact. Particularly where there are women and children, it is an important safety factor.

Ease of steering and control are additional factors in the safety of the new Ford. The steering gear is what is known technically as three-quarter irreversible. This means that the bumps and jolts of the road are fully absorbed by the wheels and steering mechanism of the car and are not transmitted to the hands of the driver. A slight touch is sufficient to guide the car. Yet you always have that necessary feel-of-the-road.

The ease of shifting gears, quick acceleration, abundant power and speed for every emergency, and full vision front, side and back, are other points to remember in considering the unusual safety of the new Ford.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

LOVE AND LUMBER

By EFFIE DELNORD

JANICE sat as usual with her back to the window, notebook open, pencil in hand, watching from under her long eyelashes Giles Hufford. She had sat this way so many times that she knew every line in his smooth browned face, every expression that lighted his steel-blue eyes. She knew by certain inflections in his voice whether he was angry or pleased. She knew by the odd twist of his lips whether his smile was forced or natural and she could tell from the way he lighted a cigaret if he was disturbed.

For weeks she had refused to believe that she realy was in love with him and for more weeks she had struggled against this increasing emotion, but now as she listened to the two partners in conference she was suddenly afraid that her previous love would be torn away and leave a cruel wound that never would heal.

The senior partner, for whom Janice kept, well-corked, a generous supply of contempt, pinched his narrow eyes into mere slits of craftiness and blew thoughtfully upon his old wrinkled thumb as was his custom when he was pleased with an idea, usually a shady idea and always his own.

But this time, to Janice's terror, the junior partner was launching a scheme.

"Brookes?" The old man chuckled, half sneering, half doubting.

"It can be done." Janice suppressed a shudder at the eagerness in Giles' voice. "Our orders are keeping his business going. He gets the profit and we pay for it."

Giles' uncle nodded. "I know that," he said sourly, "it's been a thorn in my side for years. But you know as well as I do that we can't get the grade of lumber we need from anybody but Brookes. We can't get that business. They'd never sell. Some kind of a silly sentimental notion about father, grandfather and what not carrying on the same firm. Why, I know young Brookes' mother and she thinks as much of that business as she does of her son. You might be able to handle the boy, but when it comes to the mother, you're up against solid granite.

Giles laughed easily. "Modern engineers crack granite like that." He snapped a match in two. "We can force him out, you know, force him to sell."

Janice sat quietly, suffering acutely. Always she had believed that Giles did not approve of his uncle's methods in business and now this man whom she admired and loved was deliberately planning the ruin of a nice young man like Paul Brookes. She knew the latter slightly, he came to the office now and then, a medium sized blond young man with frank, almost soft, gray eyes.

The senior partner blew thoughtfully upon his ancient thumb and Janice noticed that Giles smiled quite naturally. "More easily said than done," sneered the old man, and Janice felt faintly hopeful.

The nephew reached for a cigaret and Janice from under her long eyelashes watched stealthily, nervously. If Giles was disturbed, or not sure of himself, he lit his cigaret quickly, jerkily. With a sinking heart she witnessed his easy deliberate movements. "We'll cancel our last order—and not give him another. Six months will have him on his knees begging for mercy."

The old man shot him a contemptuous glance. "Are you crazy? We need the lumber. How are we going to fill our orders? You're a fool."

"Am I?" Giles looked at Janice and winked. Under different conditions Janice would have loved that wink, but now she felt like a dishonest third party of a muddy plot. "It happens that luck is with us, Uncle Jed. A shipload of lumber came in today consigned to Drake & Co., they can't use it, but we can. Of course, Drake has some kind of a verbal agreement to turn over any lumber of that grade to Brookes, but I can fix that up. I'm going over to see Drake this afternoon."

"Have you an option on the lumber?" The old man sat up, his voice quivering with eagerness.

"No, I'll fix the whole thing right after lunch."

From that moment until Giles left the office Janice never raised her long eyelashes. Not even when Giles cleared his throat once or twice, the usual hint that he wanted to smile a strictly personal goodby into her eyes.

When he was gone she rose abruptly and faced the senior partner.

"Mr. Hufford, I wish to give notice that I am leaving when my week is up."

Just before she closed the door. But if, for her luncheon, she deliberately chose the restaurant where she and Giles usually ate, who could blame her?

"I knew I'd find out!" cried a relieved masculine voice in answer to her prayer. "I told uncle I would and I told him too that unless you came back to Hufford and Hufford this afternoon the Brookes deal was all off. So the senior partner sends his apologies to you through me and begs you to return to your old place."

Janice did not raise her long eyelashes for fear Giles would see the agony mirrored in her eyes. Here she was up against the same problem, wanting to go back, knowing it was all wrong, loving so terribly and wishing she didn't.

"You know, of course," Giles settled himself comfortably beside her, "that Paul Brookes hates the lumber business as much as he loves painting portraits and that his mother has more money than she can possibly use, but would rather see her son unhappy than have the business pass into other hands. Paul's too soft-hearted to have a big row with her and he's been begging me for years to help him. So when he told me about this consignment of lumber to Drake & Co., we cooked up a scheme together which I believe will work out o. k. if Paul will be patient. Uncle's going to get one big last kick out of it, too. You know he's retiring the first of the year."

Janice raised those long eyelashes at last. She wanted to tell him everything, but Giles spoke first. "That's the end of shop talk. I've something else to tell you, Janice, of far more importance." He hesitated.

She probably sensed that he needed help for when he found her hand it was wonderfully warm and encouraging.

"IN KONJOLA I FOUND MY FIRST AND ONLY RELIEF"

Pittsburgh Resident, Happy With Renewed Health, Pays Glowing Tribute to Famous Medicine; Says It Ended Two Ailments.

Surprising as it may seem, this new and different medicine, Konjola, that is creating such a furore in Pittsburgh and vicinity, is at the very peak, the apex, of its powers in cases that have defied all other medicines and treatments.

MR. S. J. SHAWICKEY

Konjola contains 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices from Nature's own roots and herbs; Konjola contains 32 pain-banishing, disease-ending, health-giving ingredients. Konjola is a medicine that brings results, not words; accomplishments, not promises. All who suffer and who would be well again are invited to call on the Konjola Man, who is at the McCulloch-Dow Drug Company, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and hear his personal explanation of the merits of this amazing medicine. He will point out case after case wherein Konjola proved the first and only remedy that gave relief from years of suffering. It was the happy experience of the Konjola Man to hear the glad report of Mr. S. J. Shawickey, 5408 Carnegie Avenue, Pittsburgh, who graphically told what Konjola had done in his case. Mr. Shawickey, who is an accountant, made this report to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"In Konjola I found my first and only relief from a complication of three ailments that had refused to yield to any other medicine or treatment. I was the hapless victim of stomach and liver trouble and with a slight case of catarrh. If anyone had told me that Konjola would relieve these ailments, I would not have believed them. I actually hated the thought of meal time, because after each one I suffered for an hour or so from indigestion pains. Improper functioning of my liver made me tired and sluggish. I might add that the catarrh gave me no little amount of discomfort.

"This was my exact condition when I started on Konjola. I thought that my case was pretty severe for one medicine to help, but I did not know Konjola. Not for a minute did it hesitate in going to the source of my troubles. Almost immediately I could feel it going to work. My organs started functioning better and the tired, lazy sensation gave way to one of glorious energy and strength. The stomach and liver troubles seemed to melt into the air and once again I am able to eat three healthy meals a day without suffering the slightest bit. I intend to take Konjola a short time longer for the catarrh, although my head is a great deal more clear. I hope that this statement will reach others who may be in poor health and be the means of benefiting them as it has me."

Konjola contains no alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs, nor heart-depressing chemicals. It is all medicine, every drop and every drop works. All that Konjola asks is the chance to make you well. Avail yourself of this opportunity for new, abundant and glorious health.

The Konjola Man is at the McCulloch-Dow Drug Company, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Luck—and Love

CHOOSING a life-mate is a brain-test in which many women and most men prove that they need an alienist.

Ever since Eve went in for modesty and fig leaves, woman has been trying to discover what a man really WANTS her to be. Whatever man demands of women, he always GETS—and he gets it in such awful doses that he soon sickens of it, and wants something else.

HELEN ROWLAND

Free-for-all kissing is the "To Let" sign on a woman's mind. Petting is the first symptom of sentimental paresis, that proves there is a vast vacuum where the brain ought to be.

* * *

A woman chooses a wrist-watch as a man does a wife. She picks it out because she likes its looks—and then spends the rest of her life wondering why it is so useless and unreliable.

* * *

It may be bad form for a man to pay his wife compliments and call her pet names in the presence of other women, but it's awfully good policy.

* * *

Wise men write a love-letter as cautiously as though they were writing for publication or posterity—and sometimes they are.

* * *

It is almost as foolish to try to domesticate a wild bachelor after he has lost his front hair as to try to tame a wild animal after it has gotten its second teeth.

No man is quite civilized before his first morning smoke. Take away a man's tobacco and you unloose all his untamed aboriginal nature.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Katie Makes an Awkward Situation for the Conspirators

IT was one thing to assure Lillian that Marion was slowly getting over the aversion to her step-father which was making her mother so unhappy. It was quite another to believe my own comforting words. For the sight of the young girl's involuntarily stiffening figure in rigid disapproval of the familiar comradely speeches directed by Harry Underwood toward his wife had discouraged as well as angered me. When the child had disciplined herself into charming graciousness over the new motor car Harry Underwood had bought as a surprise to his wife and his step-daughter, I had hoped that she was conquering the rancor she had felt toward her stepfather. But this present exhibition of childish jealousy over a familiar affectionate nickname made me long to shake her soundly.

Lillian, however, seemed definitely cheered by my reassuring murmurs.

"You're a regular first aid packet," she told me fondly, "and I'm going to believe you and start enjoying this drive."

"I'm with you," I told her, smiling, and as if the mutual declaration were a mascot, there was no other bit of unpleasantness connected with the entire ride. The words were all that Dicky had promised, and the new car lived up to its reputation for noiseless swiftness and comfort.

That Dicky also had observed Marion's dolor, I guessed when he proposed automobile poker, a favorite pastime of his, to the two girls, and for the rest of the journey their merry contest over the numbers of the auto licenses adorning the cars we met, engrossed him. Lillian and I reveled in the countrywide brave in the flaunting colors of the autumn flowers while Harry Underwood gave himself wholly to the joy of driving the new car—I knew that he had not had his hands on the kind of car he liked for a long time.

We rolled into the farmyard at five minutes to eight, Mr. Underwood holding his watch up in triumph when he had brought the car to a halt.

"I told you I'd get you here on time," he said, and I hastened to appropriate the boast before he could address his wife directly. I did not want Marion to spoil the end of the drive by another exhibition, even though silent, of her dislike of him.

"You surely kept your promise," I told him heartily. "I think you have a marvelous car there."

Dicky was half way up the steps as I finished.

"I'll tell Katie we're here," he said, but the faithful little maid was already at the door.

"Dinner she ready by time you vash oop," she said. Then her eyes widened as she took in the fact that Mr. Underwood was in the driver's seat.

"Dot no taxi," she announced, her face alight with curiosity and dawning anticipation.

"You are eminently correct, Katie," Mr. Underwood announced solemnly. "This is the new car of the Underwood clan"—he waved one hand toward his wife, the other to Marion and then pointed solemnly to himself. "If you are very good I'll take Jim and you for a ride in it some night."

"Me, I always goot," Katie returned impudently, "und I break dot Jeem's neck if he act oop. But dot dinner she burn if I stand here gabbing."

She turned toward the door, but Mary's anxious call halted her.

"Oh, Katie! Did you find my case with my address books?"

Katie spun around, spoke regretfully.

"No, dey nowhere. I look all over halls. I even peek in dot place where Junior always lose hees toys ven he leetle."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Better Form

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A very dear friend of mine is getting married. I received an invitation and my mother won't allow me to go because she thinks an invitation should be sent to the parents. I disagree, as I know of instances where invitations have been sent to the family and the family have not accepted because they did not know the bride or groom. This question has made a lot of trouble at home.

TROUBLED.

I AGREE with your mother that it would have been better form for your friend, especially since she is "a very dear friend," to have sent an invitation to your parents. However, I don't think that you should be penalized for your friend's social error—and I can't see why you shouldn't be allowed to go to the wedding.

The Pie Crust

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it considered ill manners to eat the crust of pie?

ANXIOUS.

NO. I suspect that you didn't come from New England, the "pie belt" of America! There the pie crust is so good that you can't resist eating it. And why, pray tell, shouldn't it be good manners to eat pie crust?

The First Dance

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—When having one or more married couples as guests at a dance given by a club of which we are members, should my husband's first dance be with me, his wife, or with one of our lady guests?

2—When only ladies are our guests, with whom should my husband dance the first dance? Please understand these are informal dances and there are no dance programs. The membership is composed entirely of married couples, so there would be no bachelors to draw on.

SUE.

1—Your husband would dance first with one of your guests, with the guest of honor if either is the guest of honor. As the host, he would dispense his hospitality immediately by dancing with one of his guests.

2—With one of the other ladies. His hostship certainly would be strained if he has to take care of the dances of so many guests. But if he is a gallant man, he can manage it.

A Friendly Thought

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have just joined a big organization. I enjoy the work very much and also have some very good times while there. Is it proper for me to show my appreciation by telling them how glad I am to be with them? If so, what is the proper way to express myself?

INTERESTED READER.

A NICE friendly question. Yes, indeed, by all means articulate your delight in being situated so happily. Say, for instance, "I cannot tell you how happy I am in my work here. I enjoy it so much, and it is a delight to work with all your friendly people." Or, "I wish I could tell you how happy I am to work here with you. I enjoy so much the work that has been assigned to me, and I enjoy every minute of my contact with the other workers here."

Electrical Appliances

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me the correct place for the electrical appliances, such as urn set, toaster and grill in between meals?

2. Also, should the tablecloth be left on and appliances left on the table, or should the cloth be removed and a centerpiece used?

This is to settle an argument.

READER.

IN a pantry, a butler's pantry if you have one, or in any other pantry this is convenient.

2. The tablecloth should be removed after a meal, and on the table should be some kind of short runner or linen or lace centerpiece. On this is usually a centerpiece of silver or glass or interesting pottery of some kind, and in this flowers or fruit. If these are too costly for the budget I suggest a few sprays of Chinese lilies, which now have been so wonderfully developed that they have five or six beautiful leaves. The stalks are put in water, and with care, they last two or three years.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Diseases of Kidneys Often Very Dangerous

ANY one of the organs of the body may be the seat of disease, but it is rare indeed for disease to originate here. Nature was too wise in planning the human body to leave any one of the vital organs subject to accident or direct disease. All are so situated and so guarded that it is difficult to reach them.

DR. COPELAND

The kidneys are surrounded by fat, covered over with strong muscles and so situated within the body that they are pretty safe from trouble. But in spite of all these methods of protection, they do suffer disease.

There may be inflammation of the kidney substance, or of the lining of the cavity of the kidney. It is a disease known to the doctors as pyelitis. The more complicated form where all parts are involved is given an even bigger name pyelonephritis.

You need not try to remember these terms. The simple definition is "inflammation of the kidney."

Of course, we have a more common disturbance known as nephritis, or Bright's disease. This differs from pyelitis in that it is a disease of the lining of the tubes and passageways of the kidney, and not of the substance of the organ.

Imagine a lot of water pipes contained within a barrel filled with clay. Perhaps these pipes discharge into a hollow space at the bottom of the barrel.

The arrangements of the kidney is not unlike this. In nephritis or Bright's disease, the lining of the pipes is diseased. In pyelitis, the clay packing of the barrel and the lining of the basin are inflamed. Do you get the idea? It is the substance of the kidney and not the complicated system of tubes within it that is involved.

Out of the cavity in the kidney, known as the pelvis, the urine is carried through a passageway called the ureter. This opens into the bladder.

The most common cause for pyelitis is the extension of disease in the bladder upwards into the pelvis of the kidney. Pus or germs in the bladder or adjacent parts readily find their way through the ureter. Of course, the germs of disease may reach the kidney through the blood, but extension of trouble from below is the more common manner of infection.

Pain in the kidney region, or tenderness on pressure is likely to be present. There may be fever, or chills and fever.

After pus forms in the pelvis of the kidney, it is mixed with the urine and discharged into the bladder. There may be blood as well as pus.

Loss of strength, gradual loss of weight and general illness may result. The symptoms may last for months.

If one kidney is involved it is not so serious. If both are diseased, serious results may follow.

I shall say little about the treatment, because a trouble so grave as this should have careful treatment at the hands of a physician. Rest in bed, hot compresses over the kidney region in the small of the back, and simple diet, are indicated.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, February 5

A DAY of most fluctuating fortunes is foreshown by the astral operations. While there are to be many live conditions, with the ambitions fired to large and fresh undertakings, yet an obstructing figure of Saturn may make it difficult to reach the goal. But whatever position is reached, despite obstacle, will be that much ground gained, and there may be assistance from places or persons least suspected. Women may be a succoring factor. Sign writings carefully.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of much opportunity, with the ambition and activities stirred to new undertakings, but a stubborn obstacle may arise to postpone the issue, which, with determination and perseverance, may ultimately win out. There is assistance from a surprising, possibly feminine source.

A child born on this day may be versatile, talented, courageous and ambitious, and may win out by grit and perseverance.

I'M THE GUY FULL OF SNAP, PERHAPS WEATHER DID IT

Maybe it's the continued cold snap that has kept I'M THE GUY fans full of pep and clever wise-cracks, or it may be the fun in writing I'M THE GUY lines that has done it—but the enthusiasm among Pittsburghers for I'M THE GUY continues undiminished.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Social Season's Swan Song to Be Sung This Week

NOW that Galsworthy has given us the swan song of the Forsyte family, it has become the vogue for events of all sorts, like the traditional charity ball, to have a swan song. And now the social season, which has been suffering a decline, to borrow phrase from our Victorian ancestors, will give its swan song to Pittsburgh this week.

After so many days, unmarked by a society event, one wouldn't expect as a swan song a week boasting social events on four of its seven days.

Tomorrow will bring an informal tea, to be given by Mrs. John Robinson McCune, her son's wife, Mrs. John Robinson McCune, Jr., and her daughter, Miss Mary McCune, in Mrs. McCune's home, Fifth and College avenues. Members of the family will serve as aides, I understand.

Then Wednesday night, you know, there's the State and Play performance to be given in Carnegie Music Hall, and on Friday the rehearsal dinner for the Todd-Nimick wedding, and on Saturday the wedding, probably the last notable social event until spring.

THIS month will see the completion of the exodus to sunnier lands, which began shortly after the holidays. But many a mother of a debutante daughter of 1929 and many a society leader who would entertain for the debbies of next season, will have to postpone their departure until they've set dates and places for any debutante entertainment they wish to give next year. Never before have I known so many dates to be taken so many months before the season opens.

The season of 1929 promises to be one of the most brilliant for several years, rumor has it, and as far as notable debutantes are concerned it will scintillate!

Do you realize that my list of debutantes for 1929 early in the second month of the year already numbers 25 young girls, representing 25 of the foremost families of the "400?"

TWO of the 25 I've just heard of —both Sewickley girls. And the debut date for one of them I've learned, too. Mrs. Chester Marsh Van Kleeck, of Sewickley, will present her debutante daughter, Rosamond Thomas Fitch, to society at a tea in the Allegheny Country Club on Thanksgiving afternoon.

And later in the season Mrs. Van Kleeck will give a ball for Rosamond, I understand. This debutante of 1929 is spending this winter in Rome, where she's in school.

ONE of Rosamond's sister Sewickley debutantes will be Melus Edwards Rhodes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dickinson Rhodes, of the valley. Melus is studying in Paris this winter, you know. The date of her debut I haven't heard yet, but it will be early next winter.

FROM Rome comes the news of the engagement of the daughter of one of Pittsburgh's outstanding families—the Olivers. The Marchesa Dusmet de Smours, of Rome, the former Edith Oliver, daughter of Mrs. James B. Oliver, of Shields, I mention to refresh your memory, has made known the betrothal of her eldest daughter, Jannie Dusmet, to Count Francisco Campello, also of Rome. The date of the wedding has not been named yet.

* * *

SOME folks are adding variety to a dull season by visits to Atlantic City, that year-round resort. The junior John S. McKelveys are there now, did you know? They're at the Hotel Traymore.

WHILE I was on that ever-absorbing topic of social conversation—the debutante—I forgot to mention a new June debutante affair. Mrs. Remsen V. Messler will give a dance on June 24, did you know, for her niece, Anne Douglas Stewart, daughter of Mrs. Douglas Stewart, of Solway street, who'll be a 1929 bud.

* * *

MISS JANE RICHARDS, of Lovelace street, entertained with a bridge luncheon Saturday afternoon in her home in honor of Miss Marion G. Dickson, of Middletown road, whose engagement to Samuel B. Heppenstall was announced recently.

* * *

MISS MILDRED SCHWAB, of Hillsdale avenue, Dormont, entertained in her home Saturday night in honor of Miss Violet Mae Flanders, of Carrick, whose engagement to Harry L. Aufderheide, of this city, was announced recently.

* * *

JENE MAGER AUXILIARY to Post No. 278, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold a card party Wednesday night in Vaughn's Hall, Liberty avenue. Euchre, "500," Old Maid and Bingo will be played.

* * *

GIRLS of the medical department of the Bell Telephone Company gave a bridge tea Saturday in McCreery's in honor of Miss Mildred Munster, of Homewood, who is to be married early this month and leave for Denver, Col., to make her home.

* * *

THE Little Flower Club will give a valentine dance Thursday night in the Knights of Columbus Hall, West Ohio and Diamond streets, North Side. Miss Anne Barrett is general chairman.

Aspinwall Women To Hear of Banking

The literature and arts department will have a luncheon session tomorrow with the programs for January and February combined. The evening department, which will meet next Monday, will entertain Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, Congress of Clubs president, as its guest speaker. The home economics department will meet at 10 o'clock February 12 to sew for the U. S. Veterans' Hospital, a valentine bridge tea the afternoon of the 16th will be held under the joint auspices of the afternoon and evening departments, an executive board meeting, Monday, the 18th, and the school committee's meeting on the 19th complete the calendar of events.

THE dramatic department of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club met today in the home of Mrs. E. R. Chew to rehearse the play, "What Price Presidency." Mrs. B. K. Elliott, chairman of the club's newly-organized gymnasium class, invites the women of the community to meet with the class tonight.

THE monthly meeting of the Pittsburgh branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church will be held at Trinity House on Thursday. A corporate communion in Trinity Cathedral will precede the meeting. The diocesan missionary, the Rev. W. F. Boyle, will address the women following their business meeting.

* * *

MRS. GEORGE K. YOUNG has charge of the program which will follow business at Saturday's meeting of the Beaver College Club, of Pittsburgh. The members will meet in the Roosevelt Hotel.

* * *

"A UNIVERSAL MALADY" will be discussed by the Rev. Dilworth Lupton at the Wednesday morning meeting of the Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church.

SCOTCH jokes will be told tonight by the members of the West View Forum in response to roll call. Papers on "The Life of Burns," "Scottish Clans" and "Sir Walter Scott" will be given by Mrs. H. N. Hennon, Mrs. Edna Kuna and Mrs. H. L. Smith. A piano duet by Mrs. Walter Dyck and Mrs. Howard McKeown will round out the program. Mrs. McKeown and Mrs. A. H. Wilt are the hostesses.

A MEETING of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Passavant Hospital will be held Wednesday in the First Lutheran Church, Grant street. Sewing at 10 o'clock, and a business session at 2 is the order of the day.

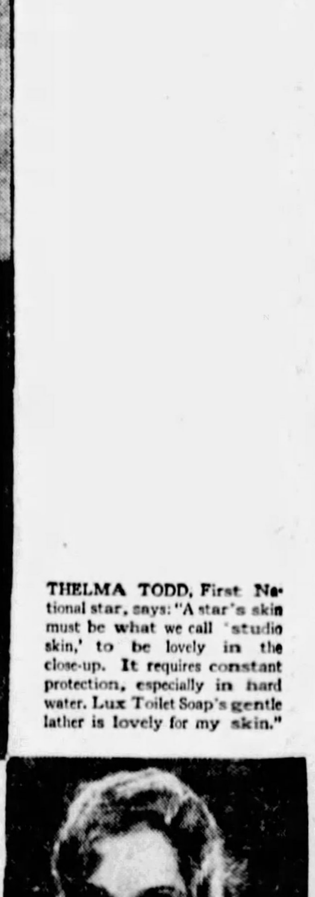
Clarence Badger and Clara Bow,

Paramount director and star, say

"Smooth skin is a girl's greatest charm"



New incandescent "sun-spot" lights—film even more highly sensitized than before! That is why the beloved screen stars must now keep their skin lovelier and smoother than ever for the all-revealing close-up.

CLARA BOW, Paramount's popular star, in the bathroom which is one of the most luxurious built in Hollywood.

"A beautifully smooth skin means even more to a star than to other women. Keeping one's skin flawless for the all-seeing eye of the camera means constant care. Lux Toilet Soap is a great help in keeping the skin in perfect condition."

Clara Bow

THELMA TODD, First National star, says: "A star's skin must be what we call 'studio skin,' to be lovely in the close-up. It requires constant protection, especially in hard water. Lux Toilet Soap's gentle lather is lovely for my skin."

The next time you see MERNA KENNEDY, sparkling little star with Universal, notice how delightfully smooth Lux Toilet Soap keeps her skin. "A star must guard with so much care the perfection of her skin! Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin so smooth," she says.

9 out of 10 Screen Stars guard their skin this way

NO MATTER where you see it —on the street, at dinner, on the screen—your heart beats a little faster in response to a faultlessly lovely skin.

"The most important thing in making a girl lovely is an exquisite smooth skin," says Clarence Badger, Paramount—and sums up the opinion of 39 leading directors in Hollywood.

"Because beautiful skin charms people so, it is a first essential for screen stardom," he continues. "Velvety skin is the treasured possession of every screen star."

As Clara Bow says, "A beautifully smooth skin means even more to a screen star than to other women."

Of the 451 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 442 (98%) keep their skin smooth and lovely with Lux Toilet Soap. Little wonder, then, that all the great film studios have made this white fragrant soap the official soap in their dressing rooms.

When you see your favorite star in the close-up, remember that nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap for smooth skin.

LAWYERS, CIVIC LEADERS SEEK TEMPERANCE PLAN

Reasoning under common law logic to show that prohibition has nullified itself because unacceptable to the people, from whom laws theoretically spring, is employed by H. R. Eppstein, a member of the New York bar, in a letter with reference to the $25,000 temperance prize contest initiated by William Randolph Hearst. The lawyer observes:

"Law is defined by Blackstone as 'A rule of civil conduct prescribed by the supreme power of the state, commanding what is right and prohibiting what is wrong.'

"Following from the maxim that 'the reason ceasing, the law itself ceases,' the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution and the Volstead act, enacted by Congress to enforce the amendment, are obsolete.

"The prohibition measures were emergency legislation passed during the stress of the World War. We ceded our personal liberties for the common good. When the war ended, the emergency legislation should have been repealed, but by that time those opposed to repeal had attained such political power by retention of a paid lobby at Washington that every attempt for repeal of this vicious legislation was defeated.

"No sumptuary law interfering with the personal habits of a nation and opposed by public opinion can be enforced. Morality cannot be enforced by law. Good social conduct comes of education. Let us apply the pragmatic method, the test of experience, to this problem."

Hundreds of attorneys in all parts of the country who have entered the temperance prize contest or have expressed opinion in connection with it have held similar views on what it is possible to accomplish through the nation-wide search for a means to substitute temperance for prohibition. These lawyers see neither legal nor moral grounds to prevent the evolving of a successful formula which shall prove acceptable both to law-makers and the public.

Thousands are sending in their plans for the consideration of the temperance contest committee, soon to be announced, which will judge the program submitted. It should be borne in mind by all those intending to enter the competition that a thorough study and comprehension of the rules and exact purposes is essential.

Following are further interviews on the contest:

C. F. Nelson Pratt.

C. F. Nelson Pratt, representative in Congress from Massachusetts:

"The prize contest plan of Mr. Hearst is in keeping with his constructive program of ascertaining public opinion on vital questions and then using the power of his great chain of papers to impress upon public officials their duty in carrying out the will of the people.

"You cannot legislate people into being good. To bring about law enforcement you must have respect for the law.

"A program of education such as the Hearst papers are embarking upon should prove of very great assistance in arriving at a solution of a problem which is troublesome to everybody."

Henderson Hallman.

Henderson Hallman, Atlanta civic leade. and governor of the National Aeronautical Society for Georgia:

"Prohibition having proved a complete failure, it is up to us to repeal it and provide in its place some system of control that will work.

"In offering a substantial prize for such a plan, Mr. Hearst deserves the commendation of all persons who really believe in temperance. His offer it is to be hoped, may stimulate some sound plan that will appeal to the intelligent people of the nation and ultimately be adopted."

Charles S. Rackemann.

Charles S. Rackemann, civic leader, of Boston:

"I have read Mr. Hearst's statement with interest and pleasure. It is refrshing to have the editor of a great chain of newspapers reaching many millions of our citizens speak the whole truth about prohibition.

"The eighteenth amendment will never be enforced, because a nation cannot be coerced, nor can temperance ever result from intemperance.

"Mr. Hearst is quite right. This question will never be settled by the extremists of either side. His offer of $25,000 for the best plan for the restoration of temperance should bring many valuable suggestions and should bear fruit in a genuinely constructive plan.

"Mr. Hearst is to be congratulated for his courage and frankness."

James A. Branch.

James A. Branch, prominent lawyer, Atlanta, Ga.:

"I congratulate Mr. Hearst on offering such an award. It is a worthy attempt to solve a vexing problem.

"Prohibition has failed completely—everyone kows that. Our need is for some substitute that will liminate the hypocrisy and evil of prohibition and prove really helpful to the nation."

Mrs. Strafford Wentworth

Mrs. Strafford Wentworth, society matron, of Milton, Mass.:

"Of course I believe the prohibition law should be repealed. I wouldn't have worked so vigorously for its removal hadn't I believed it to be one of the most absurd and ridiculous laws ever placed on our statute books.

"It is perfectly abominable that anything so ludicrous should be countenanced by a thinking public. I am perfectly willing to go on record as opposing its continuance and one who would welcome a repeal of the prohibition law and a change for temperance commensurate with the rights and liberties of the individual."

Overcome in Garage, Boy Saved by Police

Found unconscious in a garage in the rear of his home, overcome by the deadly carbon monoxide fumes, Elwood Hoeveler, 20, of 440 North Sheridan avenue, was resuscitated by Patrolmen Joseph Brennan and Herbert Rite, of the Forty-third Street Police Station. The two policemen worked on the youth with a pulmotor.

Members of the young man's family found him unconscious on the floor of the garage, the motor of his automobile running and the garage doors almost closed. Dr. Brown Fulton of 1612 Chislett street was called and he in turn summoned police with the pulmotor.

FLAG CONTEST WINNERS WILL GET WORLD TRIP

tion. Boys and girls whose eighteenth birthday falls on Flag Day, are eligible to compete, but those whose eighteenth birthday comes before that date are ineligible.

2. Boys will compete only against boys and girls only against girls, each receiving identical awards.

3. Contests will be conducted in the various communities of the United States by public high schools, or their equivalent in private or parochial schools, or by patriotic or civic organization in the community. Each school or organization conducting a Contest will be known as a "Local Contest Unit."

25 IN EACH UNIT

4. There must be at least 25 contestants in each Contest Unit. They may be all boys or all girls, or if a Unit is conducting a Contest for both boys and girls, at least six of the contestants must be either boys or girls.

5. Any school or organization may obtain authority to conduct a Flag Contest by writing to the Flag Contest Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and stating the approximate number of contestants it will have. All supplies and information will be furnished free.

6. Boys and girls wishing to enter the Contest should talk to their teachers or the heads of patriotic organizations and to their parents, urging someone to conduct a Flag Contest in their community.

7. As many Flag Contests as there are schools or organizations in a city or community that wishes to conduct them may be held, but no boy or girl may enter more than one Contest.

MEDALS FOR WINNERS

8. Winners in School and Organization Contests will receive the "Old Glory Medal" of the United States Flag Association and life membership in the Order of the Flag, the Legion of Honor of the United States Flag Association, of which Lindbergh was the first member. Their papers will be sent to the offices of the sponsoring Hearst Newspaper in their territory to be judged by a jury of prominent men and women.

9. The boy and girl chosen by the Regional Juries of Award as Regional Flag Champions, will win a free trip to Washington and other patriotic shrines and the Cross of Honor of the United States Flag Association. Their papers will be judged in Washington by a National Jury of Award and the three boys and the three girls receiving the highest marks will recite their essays in a competition to determine the National Flag Champions.

10. The National Flag champions will win a free trip round the world, accompanied by a woman of national prominence, a complete traveling wardrobe, including trunks and hand luggage, and $200 in spending money.

11. Complete rules and regulations governing the Flag Contest will be sent to the heads of schools and organizations upon receipt of an application to conduct a Contest.

EDUCATIONAL VALUE

From these simple rules, it will be seen that the Flag Contest presents no difficulties to any boy and girl between the prescribed age limits who wishes to enter the Contest. Already, the national officers of most of the patriotic organizations in the United States have given their hearty indorsement to the plan, as have prominent educators, both from colleges and in charge of public schools. It is expected that literally scores of schools and organizations in this territory alone will wish to conduct Flag Contests. Not only has this national movement been declared the "greatest patriotic youth movement" the country has ever seen, but its educational value has been stressed as fulfilling an actual need in the present educational structure of the nation.

Particularly has it been pointed out that while the major awards in themselves provide a liberal education, the greatest value of the Flag Contest lies in the educational nature of the Contest itself. No boy or girl who enters it can help but learn new things about this country and its Flag. Thus, whether or not a boy or girl wins an award in this Contest, it will be an educational treat, and the effort exerted in the competition will make the contestants better citizens of their community, their state and their nation.

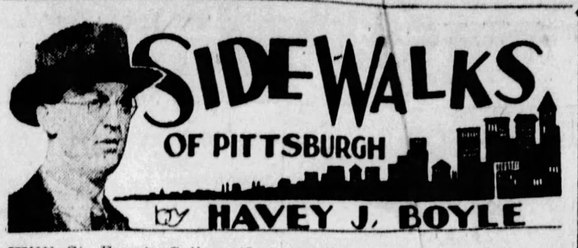
EIGHT FLEE FIRE IN SOUTH SIDE HOME

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



by HAVEY J. BOYLE

THE St. Francis College (Loretto, Pa.) has a large Pittsburgh alumni and several times a year they get together to recall those nights at Loretto when, after having shouted, "Mr. Prefect, I'm in bed," they would sneak down the rain pipe and disregard the curfew. A recent meeting of alumni here developed this story:

Father Raphael Breheny, college president, a few years ago, in the home of a friend was listening to a voice over the radio, a voice described as that of the Silver Masked Tenor.

"That's McCormack," ventured Father Breheny. "I'd know his voice in a London fog."

Two weeks ago Father Breheny was walking down the main street of Johnstown, Pa., when a well-dressed young man approached.

"You don't remember me, Father Breheny," said the young man.

"I don't?" asked the priest in a voice of denial, "why you're Joe White that I used to teach in Brooklyn 15 years ago. And what are you doing now?"

"I'm singing on the stage and this week I'm with the Silvertown Orchestra here. I'm known as the silver-masked tenor.

The story comes here on a double-play, Jack McDonough to William Pfarr to Sidewalks.

Mike Kane, the justice of the peace of Aliquippe, Pa., was telling the other day he comes of a family of 16 children. He said he was almost a man before he knew a chicken had anything but a neck and that when all the family was assembled at the dinner table there was one strict rule observed—each and every one had to keep one foot on the floor.

A. A. DOWNEY, the county detective of Fayette County, showed Sidewalks a system of keeping track of criminals that is the equal of the system in the larger cities. The fellow who goes into the Fayette County jail is well finger printed and photographed. Detective Downey's art collection of bad boys is an interesting exhibit.

It will be good news to eligible young men to know that a great many young ladies are still interested in getting married. A friend recently put an ad in a newspaper asking to hear from young ladies who might be interested in getting married. He just wanted to make a test. He got 200 answers within a radius of 25 miles of the paper in which the notice was placed. He plans to do a magazine article analyzing the ladies who answer matrimonial ads.

QUITE a few promoters in the tri-state section were disappointed when the news came over the wire that the Crandall gabfest in New York was a flop, financially. Many natis in the small towns were being made ready to follow up with local gabfests if the New York thing clicked. They had taken their lesson from the Crandall dance marathon. When that freak affair clicked in Pittsburgh and New York and Chicago, it was taken up by many small hamlets, and, barring a few exceptions, the promoters made considerable money. O'Neill Kennedy, Uniontown editor, for instance, reported that his town showed a big profit out of the marathon, and plans were being made for a gabfest when the word came that New York failed to register adequate interest.

TOWNS HOLD UP BOULEVARD ACTION

Final passage of the Ohio River boulevard ordinances by councils of the North Boroughs will be held up, at request of county authorities, pending adjustment of the maintenance question, it was learned today.

The boroughs are said to be united in opposing maintenance by the local communities, holding that the county or state should bear the expense for a through traffic artery.

Absence of Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the board of county commissioners, on account of illness, has delayed consideration of the problem, it is said. With his return it is expected that the matter will be quickly threshed out and that contracts as to the respective duties of the boroughs and the county will be drafted by county engineers for presentation.

A public hearing on the boulevard ordinance was held by Avalon Council Friday night. E. S. Brubaker and H. W. Fowler, representing the county engineers, explained the route and grades of the proposed highway to a large group of residents. Council requested that protests or indorsements be presented in writing.

FIVE CHILDREN ARE LED TO SAFETY

Police Lieut. Bernard McArdle, his aged father, a domestic and five children narrowly escaped suffocation by smoke which accompanied a fire in their home, 1921 Sidney street, South Side, yesterday. The fire was caused by an overheated flue.

The fire originated in a second floor bedroom, occupied by James McArdle, 93, and spread along the hallway to the rear rooms.

Miss Antoinette Zaukas, 16, the domestic, gave the alarm and carried Mary Ellen, 9; Delores, 7, and Loretta, 2, from the living room on the first floor to the street. Rose, 4, and Bernard, Jr., 5, walked out of the house unassisted.

Lieutenant McArdle, who reports at the Squirrel Hill Police Station, was in bed at the time. Hearing Miss Zaukas screaming, he made his way to his father's room and led the aged man to safety. Mrs. McArdle was attending church services. Damage was estimated by the police at $300.

NURSE SAYS MAN BEAT HER

Lured by a call to care for two children, Miss Jean Patrick, 22, a trained nurse, of 47 River road, Natrona, was beaten by a man when she resisted his advances, she testified today in Morals Court.

Edward Green, 23, of 5268 Holmes street, admitted to Magistrate A. D. Brandon that he had called the nurses' registry, 312 Amber street, January 25, and posing as the private secretary of a supposed wealthy resident, asked for a nurse to care for two children while the parents were in Florida. He admitted taking Miss Patrick in his car but denied beating her.

Miss Patrick said she had been under a physician's care for a week after being beaten by Green. He was held over while an information charging assault and battery is made before an alderman at the direction of Magistrate Brandon. The latter held he had no jurisdiction as the alleged beating occurred near Glenshaw.

Woman Is Stabbed, Man Held by Police

Plane, Not Pony, Gosser's Choice For Plaque

Postmaster George W. Gosser, while willing to give the old pony express rider full credit for his early deeds, believes he should have been left off the plaque on the facade of the new East Liberty postoffice and a mail plane given the place of honor. The plaque shows a pony express rider in full gallop.

"It would have been more effective if the plaque had shown a mail airplane," he said today. "I am for the plane and if there is to be a plaque on our new postoffice I want it to show a mail plane."

BLAST WRECKS EAST END SHOP

An explosion believed to have been caused by leaking gas wrecked the front of the fruit store of Samuel Venturella at 121 Collins avenue early today. It also caused damage to the Collins Restaurant at 119 Collins avenue. Both establishments are housed in the double frame dwelling.

Venturella and his family were visiting relatives in Brownsville when the blast occurred. District Fire Chief Fred S. Beckett said the damage to the restaurant would be $2,000 and the damage to the fruit store about $2,000.

GIRLS BRAVE ICY RIVER, TEMPERATURE 20 ABOVE

There is nothing so simple and stimulating as the sight of a group of boys and girls at play in an ice-filled river with the mercury hovering around 20 degrees above zero.

Stimulating may not be just as descriptive as might be—but it did appear simple to chilled newspapermen who watched it Sunday. Perhaps it was the incongruity of the situation, so to speak.

Overcoats, galoshes and ear-muffs seemed more appropriate yesterday afternoon, yet OMIGOSH!

Yes, Sir! There they were cavorting around the snow-covered bank and icy floats of the Pittsburgh Aquatic Club, between Sixth and Seventh Street Bridges. Boys and girls laughing and playing as though they were on the sands of Palm Beach, Nice, Santa Barbara, or almost any place other than the Allegheny River.

They seemed utterly oblivious to the eyes of passersby and photographers whose fingers stiffened at the camera.

Still, on second or third thought, it might not be simplicity, what would you call it?

Man Killed in Crash With Pittsburgher

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Frank McAdams, 16, Rector, Pa., died here today of a fractured skull suffered in an automobile accident yesterday near Bolivar. A brother, Elijah, 18, is in a local hospital. Another brother, Walter McAdams, 24, will be arrested, Corp. E. C. Domsella, of the state motor patrol, said, on a driving charge. NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—William Cullen Kemp, known as "the perpetual student" at Columbia University, died yesterday at the age of 78. He studied at the university for 60 years.

During his years of study he acquired 13 degrees. A relative, in order to urge him on, left him $2,500 a year as long as he remained in college.

Notwithstanding his scholastic bent, he was greatly interested in student activities and always attended the annual "cane sprees" and junior promenades.

He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution and several prominent New York clubs.

MAN BADLY HURT IN CAR CRASH

Ruben Felman, 20, 400 South Aiken avenue, is in Pittsburgh Hospital in a serious condition, and a beacon light at Dallas avenue and Thomas street, was toppled from its pedestal as the result of a collision between two automobiles at that intersection today.

Felman, it is said, was driving in Thomas street when a car driven by Ira C. Proudfoot, 30, 7254 Kelly street, running in Dallas avenue, collided with him. In the crash the beacon light was toppled over. Felman is believed to be suffering from a fractured skull.

CITY GARAGE TO GET GUARDS

Mayor Charles H. Kline today sent to Council an ordinance creating jobs for three watchmen at $5 a day for the municipal garage and repair shop, old Exposition building.

The Mayor explained in a letter that the jobs would remedy a condition at the garage so "vividly" called to the attention of Council and the Mayor at a recent hearing.

The hearing was called to investigate repeated thefts from the garage and it was reported by employes that the absence of watchmen made the robberies possible.

Council also has under consideration an ordinance submitted about 10 days ago authorizing an increase from $3,600 to $4,200 for the garage superintendent and from $4.25 a day to $1,920 a year for a clerk.

The latter measure was sent back to Mayor Kline for a recommendation.

Man Held in South May Be Vasbinder

Chief George W. Murren of the County Detective Bureau today is awaiting pictures and fingerprint records of an alleged drug addict held by Bay Minnette, Ala., police, thought to be Jack Vasbinder, who escaped from the county jail here with Paul Jawoiski, while under death sentence. The picture and records were shipped from Alabama last night by air mail.

The prisoner said he was D. H. Miller. Miller was arrested in Bay Minnette last Tuesday after an alleged attempt to obtain narcotics on a forged physician's prescription. When questioned, Miller admitted having been in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, but said his home was in Trenton, N. J.

ELECTRIC ADS FOR PAPERS

After a two-year period of research, during which a vast amount of data was compiled, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company today announced a 1929 advertising program, trebling the amount of newspaper space formerly used, with full page advertisements in Sunday rotogravure sections, as a background for the company's entire advertising effort.

According to J. C. McQuiston, general advertising manager of the company, the decision to expand the company's advertising program so greatly was reached because of its proven value to the company's sales organization and a unanimous demand for an increased newspaper advertising program by sales representatives in every part of the United States.

Mr. McQuiston said:

"Because of the great increase in the number of lines manufactured and the widespread distribution system we have formed, newspapers seemed to offer the best medium with which to both nationalize and localize our complex sales effort.

"The past two years have been for us a crucial test for newspaper advertising and the fact that we are trebling our program this year is sufficient proof of the advertising power of the nation's newspapers."

NEWSBOYS AT EMSWORTH LOYAL TO SUN-TELEGRAPH

Newsboys who deliver the Sun-Telegraph to subscribers in Emsworth handle no other Pittsburgh evening or Sunday paper, and will continue to handle the Sun-Telegraph exclusively.

They were recently approached by the agent of another paper and asked to sell it and to drop the Sun-Telegraph. All refused, saying: "We are well satisfied with the wages and treatment we receive. Why should we change?"

The boys receive their papers from E. C. Edick, Emsworth news dealer, and are loyal to him. Not one has quit as a result of Mr. Edick's decision to handle the Sun-Telegraph exclusively in the evening and Sunday field.

The boys' wages average more than $2 a week.

THEFTS LAID TO POLICE LAXITY

Council received a letter today from James W. Houston and Company demanding police protection to end repeated robberies from the company's building, Liberty avenue and Fourteenth street. The fifth robbery occurred last Saturday night when a quantity of merchandise was removed.

After one of the recent thefts, stolen sugar was found to have been used in a nearby building to make moonshine, the letter states. City police were evidently unaware of the existence of the moonshine plant, but federal agents raided the place shortly after, the letter said.

It said:

"It seems incredible that there could be such a lack of police protection in the heart of the city, and it is only the restraining influence of the United States courts that prevents an absolute reign of anarchy.

"Apparently no relief is to be expected from so-called guardians of the peace as newspaper reports indicate that those who should be enforcing the laws are most actively engaged in breaking them.

"With the utmost brazenness, these indicted persons continue to hold office and the criminal elements seem to regard this as an invitation to ply their trade without fear."

The letter, signed by John D. Houston, demands protection in the "proportion to the taxes paid to the city."

6TH DOOR BALKS THIEVES

Police today are looking for thieves whose perseverance netted them $20 in cash, but failed to reward them with $700 which was near at hand. The raid was made on the butcher shop and grocery store of H. A. Moore, 420 Semple street.

To reach the store, the robbers first forced open a door in the rear of a garage behind the store. Once in the garage, they had to get into the yard, so they jimmied the front door of the garage. Crossing the back yard they broke through the rear door of the store. Still another door barred their way, one leading into the storeroom. This also was forced.

Then the safe door balked them. They knocked off the combination and another door confronted them.

It was too much. They gave up.

Behind the unopened door lay $700, Saturday's receipts. The cash register yielded the $20.

NEWSBOYS WHO DELIVER THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH IN EMSWORTH

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.

This week-end news comes under the fish and game department. Our two leading actors left the humans flat last week.

Taking them up alphabetically, Mr. Coolidge went clear to Florida to speak to the birds and casually remind them that their luxury was directly traceable to a Republican administration, that under a Democratic regime they would no doubt revert to slavery.

While Mr. Coolidge was orating to the jay bird, the woodpecker and the robin red breast on the advantages of prosperity, why Mr. Hoover fought off and defeated single-handed a forty-five pound sailfish that was trying to get into his cabinet.

Yours, WILL.

P. S. The Virginia quail are wondering when Carter Glass will build a sanctuary for them, as they can't continually rely on poor marksmanship.

DRAMA, MUSIC AND COMEDY ON AIR PROGRAMS TONIGHT

BRITISH AUTHOR TO HEAR PLAY FROM KDKA

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

PITTSBURGHERS must strain their ears to hear 2LN at London, but KDKA goes booming right into the English capital.

That's what we are to understand from a letter sent the pioneer station by Mrs. Helen Stringer of 81 Liverpool road, Birkdale, Lancashire, England. Mrs. Stringer wrote a one-act play, "Superstition," and sent it to KDKA for production. She wrote that KDKA was heard regularly in London.

Well, if Mrs. Stringer is tuned in tonight at 10:01 o'clock she will hear the play well done under the direction of Mrs. Lane Thompson. The play was adjudged good enough to present as a special feature in observance of Drama Week.

The discovery of the Columbia River in the Northwest in 1797 is the subject of tonight's program by "The Empire Builders." The story of the voyage of the schooner "Columbia" from Boston and the success of Capt. Gray, American merchantman, where French and Spanish explorers had failed to discover the mythical river known to Indians as the Oregon, provide the thrills of the broadcast.

Many explorers had heard of the "Great Stream," traditional among Indians, yet no man before Capt. Gray could discover the actual river. When Capt. Gray found it in 1797, he named it after his ship, "The Columbia."

PITTSBURGH SYMPHONY SOCIETY

Syria Mosque

PROGRAM.

Overture, "Der Freischutz".....Weber
"Pace, Pace" (La Forza del Destino).Verdi
Charlotte Griffith Ryan.
Symphony No. 4, in A Major ("Italian"), Op. 90.....Mendelssohn
Allegro vivace. Andante con moto. Con moto moderato. Saltarello. Presto.
"Andante Teneramente" (Nordic Symphony).....Hanson
"On the Steppes".....Borodin
"Le Papillon".....Fourdrain
Aria, "Michaela" (Carmen).....Bizet
Charlotte Griffith Ryan.
"Caprice Espagnol".....Rimsky-Korsakoff

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society gave another most reassuring account of itself in Syria Mosque last night. The steady improvement in the ensemble and tone of the organization is most noticeable in woodwinds; its weakness is still a matter of concern when playing accompaniments.

The program was the dullest the society has offered. Mendelssohn had little inspiration for orchestration, and so his symphony, the backbone of the program, hobbled along without a jolt even from Eugene Goossens, who must have been wearied long before the second movement. The Rimsky-Korsakoff "Caprice" showed what the orchestra could do in high color, but the real contribution of the evening was the excerpt from Howard Hanson's "Nordic Symphony." This music has form, it is ingratiating, and its orchestration would immediately interest one in the entire symphony.

Charlotte Griffith Ryan, lyric soprano from the Metropolitan Opera, was soloist. Her voice is luscious and she sings with real musicianship, although all her arias were marred by a decided deviation from pitch. As encores she sang "Dich Teure Halle" from Tannhaeuser" and the "Vissi d'Arte" from "Tosca."

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Robbed by 2 Bandits At Grant and 5th Ave.

After asking William G. Eperthener, of 114 Ceres way, to direct them to Dormont, two young men pressed revolvers to his side, and robbed him of a watch valued at $15 and $28 in cash last night in Grant street, near Fifth avenue. The pair then leaped into an automobile which they had parked nearby and sped away. Eperthener notified city detectives.

WHO'S GUILTY???

CAN YOU SOLVE THIS DETECTIVE STORY?

The Lethal Watermelon

By Evelyn Johnson and Gretta Palmer

SUSAN WELSH was a spinster of the thin, sharp-faced type. She attended church regularly and subscribed to Far East Missions, and practiced on those about her a subtle cruelty that would be envied by many a savage. She was playing to the gallery of an Evangelical God and was rather proud of her terrestrial unpopularity.

Her household consisted of her two most sensitive and impractical relatives. Jane Welsh, her unpaid companion and maid-of-all work, was a second cousin of 27, whose hair fell about her ears in untidy beauty, and who was remarkable for her gentle inefficiency. When Jane's failures with the dust-pan had brought down Susan's wrath, and when Jane had wept her due flood of contrite tears, the day could not be called a failure for Susan.

In her choice of her nephew, Tom, Susan Welsh had been less successful. Upon being scolded, Tom had a most disconcerting way of retreating into some haven of science to which she could not follow. When he emerged, his apologies would be quite in order, but it angered Susan that she should be unable to hurt him.

Tom was engaged in some sort of experimentation of a scientific nature which seemed to entail considerable dust in his workroom. He was interested in the more esoteric aspects of sound waves, and tuning forks and such must not be disturbed during an experiment. Jane, however, was allowed to clean out his workroom at monthly intervals, and this procedure had become more or less of a rite to the girl. She could not understand his mysterious contrivances, and stood in a certain awe of them.

BETWEEN Jane and Tom had sprung up a strong friendship and commiseration in their persecution. From time to time he would allow her to watch some experiment that he was conducting, and sometimes he even allowed her to help him make a phonographic record of her own voice.

One morning the rector's wife stopped in to chat with Jane for a few minutes, as she always did on her way to the missionary society. Jane had evidently seen her coming, for she met her at the garden gate and they passed several moments in general gossip and the contemplation of a newly-acquired rose bush. Jane told her that Tom had gone to town an hour before, and through the open window could be heard the voice of Susan Welsh on the telephone scolding the grocer for yesterday's deliveries and ordering groceries for the day.

"I want two bags of flour and a watermelon," came the voice of Miss Welsh.

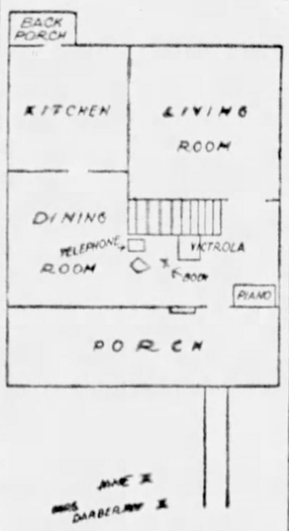
The scolding and ordering ceased, and there was a pause of several seconds. Then the calm of the morning was shattered by a shrill scream from the house. Jane rushed for the door, followed in a slightly more dignified manner by the rector's wife, Mrs. Darberry. They found Susan Welsh stretched on the floor in the hall beside the telephone. There was blood on the back of her head and on her dress, and, while Mrs. Darberry telephoned for the doctor and the police, Jane, with considerable more than her usual presence of mind, pulled off her gardening gloves, secured water and a cloth and proceeded to bathe the wound. It was soon evident, however, that Susan Welsh was dead.

THE police arrived almost immediately.

It was quite clear that Miss Welsh had been killed with the heavy iron poker with its knob covered with blood which lay on the floor beside the body. Unfortunately there were no fingerprints. The only exit to the house besides the front door which was in full view of Jane and Mrs. Darberry when they heard the scream, was the kitchen door. This the police found open. The house had wide lawns, and was not clearly visible from the homes adjoining on either side, so that it would have been quite possible for an intruder to slip in and murder Miss Welsh as she finished telephoning, and slip out again. The only risk he would run was that of meeting some passerby as he stole out through the back garden. The police were unable to find any one who had been in the neighborhood of the Welsh house, which was in a very quiet locality, at the time of the murder, so that seemed very plausible.

Jane supplied the information that her aunt had been wearing several valuable rings. Mrs. Darberry and several witnesses confirmed this statement, saying that Miss Welsh was inordinately vain of her hands and always wore the rings. It was quite evident that the rings had been torn from her fingers, and they were nowhere to be found, although the police instituted a thorough search.

Mrs. Darberry gave her testimony. She always passed the Welsh house at 10 minutes to 11 on her way to her meeting. She was a very prompt woman. Jane nearly always came out for a few minutes and chatted with her, or else she would be working in the garden. This morning, as usual, Jane had come down the walk, garden shears in hand, and they had talked a few minutes. They had overheard Miss Welsh ordering the flour and the melon, and then there had been the scream. She and Jane had entered the house together and had found Susan dead.



JANE stated that she had finished her housework at about a quarter to 11. She had taken her gloves and shears and gone out to the front garden. She remembered distinctly that the back door had been shut. She had passed Miss Welsh in the front hall. She had been rubbing her finger over the piano for dust. She had seen Mrs. Darberry coming and had hurried down the walk. They had had their conversation, heard Miss Welsh telephoning and had rushed in just as Mrs. Darberry had testified. They had no servant, and Tom had gone to town over an hour ago. The cross-examination was interrupted by a ring at the back door. It was the grocery boy, carrying a small package.

Mrs. Darberry knew her grocery boys. She was startled to see the urchin bearing with him the watermelon and the flour ordered a scant 15 minutes before.

Who murdered Susan Welsh, and how?

NANCY DEANE

By Roy L. Foley

Wescott Asks Nancy to Give Up Ginger as A Companion

CHAPTER XXV.

AFTER Nancy had eaten she did feel better. Much better. There was no trace of weeping now, her eyes were brighter, as though the tears had washed them clear. Wescott sat across from her at a little table in front of the large fireplace at the Colony Inn.

The two tall plain white candles on the table were just high enough so that their lights were caught in Nancy's eyes, and reflected back at Wescott. He thought she had never looked more beautiful.

He had taken her to the Colony Inn because he knew at this hour the dinner rush would be over. Besides Nancy was the type that seemed to fit in with the atmosphere of the quaint eating place with the early American furniture, pewter ware and white candles.

Wescott had often hunted for a word to describe Nancy, she had a quaintness about her. And yet one couldn't say she was old-fashioned. Her short skirt that hardly covered the roll of her sheer stockings, smart little felt hat—no, old-fashioned was NOT the word. Wescott gave up. He only knew that in all his travels, he had never met anyone just like her. He wondered how some of the society girls he knew would regard her, and how she would regard these girls who lived only for the League Revue, a winter cruise to the Mediterranean, a ball, a gown, a title.

No. Let the society girls stay in their own sphere. Nancy would never be able to understand them. And he feared the hurts that would come to her if ever she should be laid open to their merciless analysis.

Wescott was enough of a reader of feminine nature to know that Nancy's colorful qualities would bring her many a heartache. He debated whether he should take her out of her present environmen, introduce her to his own set—marry her?

Marry her!

What preposterous thoughts were flying through his brain. How many times had he told himself that he was not a marrying man, that he wasn't ready to tie himself to any one woman when the world was so full of lovely women, girls. The thought that he might be caught in an infatuation for a poor, obscure girl, a factory worker really, hardly more than a waif, made him smile.

"There, didn't I tell you it was food you needed," he said when the waitress brought their coffee.

"A bite to eat often changes the color of the whole world, doesn't it? Things don't look so dark now, do they? Look at me. Say no."

Nancy had her eyes on the flickering flame of the candle before her. She did feel better. Much better. She had had her cry and it had done her good.

"Look at me," repeated Wescott, "can't you smile a little?"

Nancy let her eyes look into his, and she did smile. She couldn't help it. There was a trace of shame in her smile. She was ashamed of the way she had let herself go.

"Let's not talk about it," she said, "let's go looking for my new living quarters right away."

On the top floor of a modest apartment building Nancy and Wescott were shown into one of those tiny roomed flats that have come into vogue during the last few years. The rooms were more than "cute," more than "ducky," as Ginger had described some of the little apartments she had seen. They were "just sweet," Nancy said.

The agent was enthusiastic over the "efficiency" features of the apartment, such as the roll-away bed that folded up and was pushed into a long, narrow closet. He led them through the living room, with its wicker furnishings, and into a little place not much bigger than the closet in Nancy's room in Washington. He pressed buttons and twisted funny knobs, and lo! there was the kitchen.

A few more twists of knobs and pressing of buttons and things disappeared in a manner so sudden and mysteriously that Nancy exclaimed with delight. She could have manipulated the "kitchen" for an hour.

The miniature bathroom was another wonder to behold. Ivory—or at least it looked like ivory—and silver, or it looked like silver.

"Bet Cleopatra never had anything any nicer than this," Nancy observed.

She skipped through the rooms, clapping her hands when she discovered some new delight. How beautiful it all was. The few pictures were prints such as she had always longed for, but had never been able to afford. Anyway, Mrs. O'Day would never have given up her enlarged photographs and the glass encased wax flowers that decorated her parlor wall at home.

Mrs. O'Day was a good soul, a saint in fact, and the dearest thing that Nancy had in the world, but her taste in pictures and decorations didn't quite agree with that of an interior decorator.

Wescott watched her enthusiasm mount higher and higher. She was in an ecstacy of happiness.

"Like it?" he asked.

"Like it! It's adorable. How happy I'll be in a place like this. I'll take it. I'll sacrifice a lot of things to take it. It's sweet."

They left the agent to snap out the lights, to lock the door of the rooms that were to be Nancy's new home—a replica, almost of hundreds of other little apartments in hundreds of other apartment buildings all up and down the avenues of the city.

After they were in the car again, Nancy became silent.

"What's the trouble, why so quiet?" Wescott asked after a while.

"Now that I'm away from it, I'm worried," Nancy replied. "I wonder if I really can make a go of it."

Wescott laughed her fears away.

"Don't worry about making a go of it," he said, "of course you can. With your studying the way you have been it won't be anytime before you'll make a first-class secretary and can take over my correspondence."

"Mr. Wescott, Howard—"

"Just don't mention anything about any increase in pay to Miss Crosby," he said.

There was a note of tenderness in his voice now. It was such a compelling voice that Nancy could only nod her head in acknowledgment.

"I'll work like anything and I'm sure I can finish the business course in half the ordinary time," she said, "when I'm up there alone at night where it's so quiet and clean I'll be able to study in peace. And as soon as I'm through of course I'll try to learn everything there is to know about the knitting business until I become so valuable you'll have to give me raises and raises. Then it won't be so long before I'll be earning enough to get a bigger apartment so that Mud and Darry can come down."

"Oh, I see," said Howard Wescott.

He suggested that they drive to the Logan Cabin, a quiet little place, where there was good music and they might have a dance or two.

Without waiting for her yes or no, he started the big car and in an instant was edging in and out of the traffic and trying to shade his eyes from the glaring lights of oncoming cars.

That's how he was. He suggested something and then carried her off her feet so compellingly, that they were going ahead before she could make a protest. Then he laughed and chucked her under the chin. It had happened both in the office and out of it. Never before had she been so delightfully compelled to submit to the will of another.

At the Log Cabin almost the first persons they noticed on the dance floor were Ginger and Ziebelbaum, and when the dance was finished Ginger led the red faced, puffing little man over to the table where they were sitting. One glance was enough to show they had both had a drop too much from the cup that cheers. They were in a very rosy mood and invited themselves to sit.

"It's sure our luck to run into you," Ginger said happily almost too happily.

"We were jes' gettin' lonesome, and in you come. Had a swell dinner at the Red Circle. Didn't we, Zieggie?"

Ziegelbaum's shining face was one big grin. He moistened his thick lips with a very pink tongue and nodded approval of what Ginger said. He put his arm around her waist. They both teeter-tottered back and forth over the table.

Nancy was mortified. Both she and Wescott had come in out of the fresh air. Now these two, having drunk just enough to be silly, showed themselves in all their cheapness. She wished they would go. She didn't want Wescott to think they were intimate friends.

But they didn't go, and at last Nancy rose.

When Ginger saw she was leaving she challenged the two men to race back to town.

"Ginger!" Nancy protested, "what are you saying!"

Once in the car Wescott drove furiously, so fast that the big car drew up in front of The Carmondy just 25 minutes after they had left the roadhouse. Wescott had spoken hardly at all during their return and when he opened the door for Nancy to get out, he said:

"These two people prove why I would like you to get out of this place and into different surroundings."

But as much as she had been embarrassed, Nancy did not forget that Ginger had taken her in when she had no place to go, had been good to her in her own way. Ziegelbaum, too. He had made it possible for Nancy to earn $15 in one evening, more money than she earned in a week before, and that $15 had been sent to Mud and Darry O'Day.

Between her loyalty to these two, her shame for them, and her knowledge of Ginger's appearance and speech were against her. Nancy didn't know what to say. When Wescott had found her crying up in Ginger's room, Nancy had hated every thing in the room. She thought she couldn't stand Ginger another minute. Now she was feeling sorry for her, defending her.

"Oh, Ginger's all right, it's just that she shows her worst side sometimes. She means well," Nancy said.

"She may mean well, but she's too coarse a companion for you," was Wescott's answer, "the sooner you leave her the better."

The words were sharp, cold, Nancy thought. She had never heard that tone in his voice before. Suddenly he seemed hard and as unfeeling as steel. Nancy didn't say anything at once, she didn't know what answer she could make. She did think that it must be money, and the power that comes with money, that puts tones like that into a voice.

"Let's not talk about Ginger now," she said, "I see you're a little prejudiced."

"Very well," he said, and then, as an afterthought, he said:

"By the way. How would you like to help my mother and another woman do a little work next week. They're giving a large reception, a sort of pay-back to all their friends for invitations received during the year. They'll need help in getting out invitations and preparing lists and all the things that women think necessary in an affair of this kind. Mother asked me if I didn't know some girl at the office who might like to help her."

Impulsively, before Nancy thought fully what she was saying, she said:

"I think it'd be fun. I'd love to help. I've read of girls who did that for a living—social secretaries and all kinds of thrilling things happened to them."

She said these things, so fast, so joyously, that Wescott had to smile.

"My, you're an enthusiastic little piece—when you're not weeping."

Nancy pretended she didn't hear.

"Who is the other lady giving the reception with your mother?" she asked.

"A woman who lives on our street. A Mrs. Deane," Wescott answered.

BEWARE OF DIETS WITHOUT BULK

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Will Protect You

People are more careful than ever before about diet. They diet to clear complexions. They avoid certain foods to stay thin. They eat others to get fat. But many are running a serious danger because they are missing the "roughage" or "bulk" foods that every person must have to keep well.

As a result, constipation gets in its deadly work. Headaches, listlessness, circled eyes are only the first symptoms. In the end, constipation ruins health, wrecks beauty and may cause serious disease.

Don't neglect your daily roughage. That is nature's rule. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply it. A healthful cereal to eat each day. To use in cooked dishes or to serve with milk or cream. To mix with other cereals.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation — to prevent it. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It is 100% bran. Doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Served by hotels, restaurants, dining cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

PANTHER FIVE SET FOR RENSSELAER

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Land Supplants Doolan. World Billiard Tourney. Schaefer Looks Best. | Campbell's Ice Return. Pilots Seek Schmeling. Brothers in Football.

OLD CATCHERS VALUABLE COACHES

THE action of the Chicago National League club in dropping Mickey Doolan as a coach and signing Grover Land in his place appears to indicate that Joe McCarthy has seen the wisdom of the course followed by the majority of the other major league baseball managers in having an old catcher among their aides. Both Doolan and Jimmy Burke, the other Cub coach, formerly were infielders, and though there is no disputing Doolan's knowledge of the game or his value as a lieutenant from a number of angles, most fans will agree that the Bruins are likely to fare better in the long run with a veteran backstop working in his stead.

Grover Land

Many baseball men contend that no club should be without an old catcher in a coaching capacity. Not only is such a man valuable in the tutoring and developing of young pitchers who are comparatively unschooled in major league ways, but they are helpful to no slight extent in the warming up of hurlers just before the latter are sent into action. The fitness of a flinger to step upon the slab and do his best work is at all times vitally important to a club's chances for victory.

THERE is, or should be, a great deal more to warming up a flinger than the mere receiving of a lot of pitches in order to help him limber his arm. A hurler may not have given his wing all the limbering up necessary to make him fit for effective duty, his control may be off or he may lack some of his stuff.

A young third-string catcher, the kind used by some clubs, isn't qualified to decide these things. It takes an old and experienced head to determine just when a pitcher is right and when it is advisable to send him in. That's why the Pirates have Oscar Stanager, the Giants have Ray Schalk, the Braves have Hank Gowdy, the Reds have Ivy Wingo, the Cardinals have Gabby Street, the Indians have Grover Hartley, and so on down the line. And that's why the Cubs must be said to have made a good move in picking up Land, who, by the way, once served the Pirates in the same capacity.

WITH the world pocket and three-cushion arguments settled for a year to come, the billiard stage will now be turned over to the balkliners, who will compete for the 18.2 championship in a big tournament opening tonight in New York.

The tourney will be broadly international in character, with four countries represented in addition to the United States. They are Belgium, Edouard Horemans, the defending champion; France, Felix Grange; Germany, Eric Hagenlacher, and Japan, Kinrey Matsuyama. The Japanese entrant did not win a game in the last 18.2 tournament, losing six contests in a row, but he is said to have improved so much since that time that none of the other contestants is figuring him as a pushover.

Kinrey Matsuyama

FROM this distance it looks as if the competition will eventually narrow down to a struggle between Horemans, present titleholder, and Young Jake Schaefer, one of the American entrants. The possibility of an upset in billiards never can be overlooked, but as far as the advance dope may be trusted these two look like the class of the field. It was from Schaefer that Horemans won the title in a challenge match. Welker Cochran, who took the honors in the last tourney, was defeated by Schaefer, 1,500 to 1,304, and Schaefer in turn was defeated by Horemans, 1,500 to 1,190. In view of that performance, there is no getting away from the fact that Horemans is considerable of a billiard player and one who will not be easily separated from his title, but at the same time most American cue experts are of the opinion that Schaefer is without an equal when in top form, and that if Jake is at his peak for the tournament starting tonight there is better than an even chance that the championship will come back to this country.

IN HIS day one of the best of all center ice men, Lorne D. Campbell is back with his first love—amateur hockey. Lorne is now coaching the team that represents the Philadelphia Company in the West Penn Amateur League, and is getting quite a kick out of it. It has been many a day since he dashed up and down the ice with a puck, but the game has lost none of its fascination for him.

Campbell's vast store of knowledge of the ice sport is serving him well in rounding his present charges into trim. He is fortunate in having players who already know a lot about the game, so that he is enabled to devote his efforts toward developing the younger skaters of the Philadelphia Company squad and perfecting teamwork among the regulars. Lorne himself always was a team player, and he insists that the boys now under him adhere to that system. With Lorne at the helm, the aggregation bids fair to set a very creditable mark in the amateur league.

CAMPBELL had a brilliant career in hockey. Born in Montreal, he played his first engagement of note with the young Crystals, of that city, which team won every game it played for two years. Next he joined the Comets, and the following season was a member of the team that won the Montreal city championship. Still later he figured in two championships in Montreal, with the Monarch, of the City League, and the Royal Electrics, of the Manufacturers' League.

Lorne Campbell

For his brilliant playing with the latter club he was given a gold ring bearing the firm's monogram in enamel, which he still wears. In the following season "Cammy" joined the Montreal junior team, which won the junior championship of Eastern Canada, and a year later he became a member of the Montreal Intermediates, being directly responsible for their victory over the strong Crescents, of Quebec, because he scored five goals in the latter part of the game when the score stood 3 to 2 against his club.

BY THIS time Campbell's reputation had spread throughout the provinces and into the United States. Several clubs made efforts to obtain his services, Pittsburgh finally being successful. Every veteran local fan remembers Lorne's great work here. He came to Pittsburgh in 1901 as a member of the Banker team and played for several seasons. He was at center when the Bankers won the Pittsburgh City League title, and when the league disbanded he was the one member of the team selected to represent Pittsburgh on its professional team. In the interim, from 1906 to 1910, Campbell played with the famous Winnipegs, champions of Eastern Canada, and later with the crack Cobalt outfit, returning to Pittsburgh in 1910 as manager of the Pittsburgh Athletic Club team and remaining for several campaigns. Since becoming connected with the Philadelphia Company, Lorne has made his home in Coraopolis.

AS WAS to have been expected, the sensational march of Max Schmeling to the front ranks of the heavyweight championship contenders has caused a wild scramble among the fistic pilots of the East for the privilege of being his manager. Jimmy Johnston and others are leaving no strings unpulled in their efforts to get hold of this rich prospect.

However, Schmeling declares that after he has returned to Germany and has had his contract with Arthur Bulow annulled, he

BENNY TO ACT AS MANAGER TOMORROW

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Benny Leonard, who played the dual role of owner and manager at Duquesne Garden Saturday night when he piloted his Pirates to a scoreless tie with the Montreal Maroons, will be at the helm again tomorrow night when the Bucs play host to the Maple Leafs of Toronto. Although able to sit up today, Manager Odie Cleghorn still is confined to his home, and it is questionable whether he will be able to lead the local skaters to Toronto Friday night. He was stricken with a severe attack of grip last Tuesday, and a fever has sapped his strength and left him so weakened that he may not be able to resume his managerial duties for another week.

BUCS TO DRILL TONIGHT

While Cleghorn's absence is regretted by everyone connected with and interested in the local ice club, the Bucs and their followers cannot but count themselves as fortunate in having such a capable pinch-hitting pilot as Owner Benny.

In directing the Pirates, Saturday, the retired undefeated lightweight champion displayed hockey cunning which compared favorably with his oldtime ring craft, and he probably will have the Bucs in a fighting mood for their joust with the Torontoans at the Garden tomorrow.

Although Benny is maintaining a discreet silence regarding his like or dislike for the managerial job, his actions would indicate that he enjoys his new task, for he has handed himself an added burden by calling a practice session for this evening. Although the Bucs are not in the habit of working out on the night before a game, Leonard is determined not to overlook any bets in getting his men into prime condition, and he will direct the one-hour drill which is scheduled to start at 6 o'clock.

THRILLER ANTICIPATED

While the Saturday night fray with the Maroons was the roughest of the season here, none of the Pirates suffered serious injury, and the Torontoans probably will find them at their best.

Hib Milks had his front teeth bent in and Herb Drury's leg was punctured by the end of a skate, but such injuries are regarded as "nothing at all" by hockey players.

In two previous meetings with Toronto, the Pirates broke even, winning in the Canadian metropolis and losing on home ice. The scoring was fairly free and the action was fast and rough in both jousts, and indications are that tomorrow's fray will be another thriller.

Loughran-Emanuel Go Referee Named

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—Abe Roth, well known ring arbiter, today was helected by State Athletic Commissioner James Woods to officiate as referee in the Armand-Emanuel-Tommy Loughran bout here tomorrow night.

The big battle, scheduled for 10 rounds, is drawing more atttention in fistic circles than any engagement since the Godfrey-Uzcudun fight here last winter. Loughran's light heavyweight title will not be at stake.

Australia Leads In Cricket Match

ADELAIDE, Australia, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Australia took the lead in the fourth cricket test match with England today when they raised their first innings score to 365 runs for nine wickets. England scored 334 in their first innings. A. Jackson, 19 years old, playing in his first test match, scored 164 runs in faultless style for Australia. The match continues tomorrow.

Hyatt, Schaaf Tied For Scoring Lead In East

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Charley Hyatt, of Pittsburgh, and Joey Schaaf, of Pennsylvania, are in a deadlock for individual scoring honors among Eastern collegiate basketball players.

In 12 contests, the Pitt flash has tossed in 72 field goals and 33 fouls for a total of 177 points, the same Schaaf has amassed in 17 games. Collins, of St. Johns, Brooklyn, is third with 152 points.

WHITEY HAGEN ASSISTANT ATHLETIC HEAD AT PITT

JAMES (WHITEY) HAGAN, Gibby Welch's running mate at halfback on the Pitt football elevens of 1925, '26 and '27, has been appointed assistant athletic director of the University of Pittsburgh, according to an announcement made today by Don Harrison, athletic director. He succeeds Frank (Pie) Williams, who resigned January 15 to enter the automobile business. Whitey began his new duties this morning.

Whitey Hagan

Hagan was one of the most popular athletes in the history of the University of Pittsburgh, both with the student body and the coaches. Dr. Jock Sutherland, the head football coach, referred to him as the hardest-working football player ever to come under his wing, and attributed Whitey's success to the fact that he always reported early for practice and remained late. He played his greatest game against Stanford University in the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena, New Year's Day of last year. Pitt lost, 7 to 6, but Hagain was an outstanding star. He scored the Panthers' touchdown and gave a great exhibition of punting.

Hagan came to Pitt from Windber (Pa.) High School and played on the freshman team in 1924. He was graduated last June from the School of Business Administration and since has been employed by Stone & Webster in the organization's Chicago office.

Brooklyn Honors Its 'Gruber' Tonight

While Pittsburgh sportsmen are getting ready to honor John H. Gruber, veteran local scribe, at the testimonial banquet in the William Penn Hotel Thursday night of next week, Brooklyn similarly will honor one of its veterans of the profession tonight.

Brooklyn's veteran is Len Wooster, who for the last 40 years has been sports editor of the Brooklyn Times. This length of service on the paper constitutes some sort of a record.

James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion, will preside, and hundreds of fans will attend.

Tonight is Varsity Night out at Pitt, where the Golden Panthers will tie into an entirely new foe, Rensselaer Poly of Troy, N. Y. Oldtimers, famous in Pitt athletic lore, from all branches of sport, have been invited to be honor guests at this game, and will be admitted to the Pavilion without going through the usual custom of digging down in their jeans for a buck-fifty. Taking the boys at their face value, as it were.

It will be possible to glimpse a host of chaps whom you used to cheer as they battled for the Blue and Gold in varied roles. Fellows like Dr. Bob Irwin, Hank Hangartner, Dr. Bill (Frozen Pan) Parsons, Lee Frank, Elmer Lissfelt, Steve Swetonic, Sykes Reed, Red McMahon, Bill Rihanek, Pie Williams and a host of others. Having resolved not to take this athletic racket seriously in the future, and not to be taken for any more rides by any of 'em, I'll lay off such sentimental drivel and wind up this discourse on heroes of the more or less dim past.

SCHOOL TEAMS INVITED

In addition to the oldtimers who will be special guests at tonight's contest, a number of district high school squads have been invited to attend. Among these schools are Beaver and Ambridge.

The trophy the Panthers received at the veterans' banquet in Philadelphia, Saturday, will be on display at the Stadium pavilion tonight.

The Panthers came out of their game with Temple University at Philadelphia on Saturday in good shape. Tonight's contest will be the last before the Notre Dame game at South Bend Saturday. Now that I come to think of it, there isn't much connection between Rensselaer and Notre Dame, so enough of that.

The talk of the day has to do with the Geneva victory over West Virginia. This correspondent, for once in his life, was not taken for a ride. In Saturday's Sun-Telegraph I made the crack that Geneva would make it tougher for West Virginia than any other club had and that if the Covenanters won, not to shout "upset" too loudly.

LOEFFLER TOO SMART

Ken Loeffler picked enough flaws in the Mountaineer attack and defense when he watched them play Davis-Elkins last Thursday night to fill a book. He doped out a way to beat 'em on the way back home. After the game, walking from the Field House, Ken made a crack that should have meant money from home, for one could have bet the bank roll and secured fine odds on the Geneva game at that time. Here was the remark:

"They ain't gonna be SO tough!" And they weren't!

Geneva has a hard game on hand for tonight, but if the Covenanters continue to play the smart brand of basketball they've been exhibiting since their defeat at the hands of Tech, they'll take the Bethany Bisons. Bethany kicked Duquesne around Saturday and made the Dukes like it. They are starting on a tough road trip with tonight's game, which they need to win to remain in a mathematical tie for the Conference leadership.

The third district contest of the night has its sites in New Wilmington, where Westminster and Allegheny will clash in a return game. The United Presbyterians toppled Allegheny 27-26 at Meadville a couple weeks of so ago, and figure to repeat tonight, probably with a greater margin of victory.

FROTH

How about the Schotz'man who's hotel was burning down? . . . He told the firemen that they didn't need their ladders. . . . Said it was Leap Year. . . . Shake that one off! . . . Gus Glarp, Official Observer No. 47, says that no matter how tall the player, it's the last three inches in the coco that count. . . . HAKOAHS PLAY GOLDENSONS TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The New York Hakoahs, of the American Professional League, one of the best cage outfits in the country, will appear here tonight. They battle the Goldensons in the South Side Market House, and unquestionably a capacity house will be in order.

Local basketball fans will see in action the famed Davey Banks and Nat Holman, the latter coach at the City College of New York, who played with the famous New York Celtics, which was considered the best quintet in the land.

The Goldenson lineup tonight will include the Klinzing brothers, Ketchell, McVicker, McGuirk and Seigle, all more or less well known in local cage circles.

The big game is set to start around 9 o'clock. The Goldenson Vanities will strut their stuff in a preliminary fracas with the National Union Girls, which is to get under way at 8 o'clock.

DRIBBLES

The first-half championship of the P. & O. League will be decided tonight when the Morrys and Conleys clash in a playoff game in the Homestead Elks Temple. The two teams finished the first round of play in a deadlock for first place. Both clubs have been showing excellent form of late and they should present an interesting game.

The Y. M. H. A.-Kingsley House game for the first-half championship of the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League, originally scheduled at the 116th Field Artillery armory tonight, has been indefinitely postponed.

Coach Dalton Williams takes his East Liberty Y. passers to Kiski today where the locals meet Kiski tonight.

The Alumni Club, of McKeesport, meets Greenfield in McKees Rocks, in the only second-round game carded in the P. & O. League. The Morry-Conley game in Homestead is a continuation of the first round.

The Red McMahan Club, which has won 20 games so far this season, will meet the Happy McVey team at the 116th Field armory on February 20.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Toronto's Maple Leafs trounced the New York Americans, 3 to 1, in one of the season's roughest National Hockey League contests last night. The victory put the Leafs in a tie with the Montreal Maroons for third place in the Canadian section.

Most of the scoring and roughness came in the second period when Rabbit McVeigh started the action with a goal for the Americans and Ace Bailey came back with two for the Leafs less than 20 seconds apart.

Eight penalties, including a major to Dye, were called in this frame, and Lionel Conacher, American defense star, was fined for battling with Blair in the cooler. At the end of the game they resumed their scrap and several other members of both teams joined in. The lineup:

PRO GRIDDERS RENAME CARR

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—Joe F. Carr of Columbus, was re-elected president and secretary of the National Football League at its annual meeting here Saturday night. Carl Storck, of Detroit, was re-elected vice president and treasurer.

Other officers elected were H. S. Royle, of Philadelphia; Judge James M. Dooley, of Providence, R. I., and George Hollis, of Chicago, members of the executive committee, and Aaron Hertzman, of Louisville, sergeant-at-arms.

The championship for 1928 was officially awarded to the Providence Steamrollers and the league voted to present a gold watch to each member of the team and a championship pennant to the team.

Five applications from three cities for franchises were received. There were one each from Milwaukee and Buffalo and three from Boston, where Sunday sports have just been legalized. Carr said that one, and probably two, franchises would be awarded Boston.

The league officials went on record as favoring the strict adherence to the league rule that no college football player be allowed to compete in league games until he was graduated from college.

STATE FETE MAY 11

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 4.—The second annual "S" banquet, Penn State varsity lettermen's dinner and athletic program, has been set for May 11, according to Bernard Newman, chairman of the student committee on arrangements. An outstanding athletic figure or prominent coach will be brought to the college as the chief speaker for the occasion. Last year Bill Roper and Lawrence Perry addressed the Penn State athletes.

DREYFUSS OFF TO ATTEND SCHEDULE MEETING

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

BARNEY DREYFUSS, owner of the Pirates, left today for New York for the purpose of attending the annual schedule meeting of the two major leagues to be held in the metropolis tomorrow.

For many years the Pittsburgh magnate has been the principal schedule-maker for the senior league, President John Heydler, of the National League, serving with the local owner on the committee.

The sessions will take place in the Waldorf-Astoria, the famous hostelry that long has been the headquarters for the National League. It is likely that the meeting tomorrow will be the last, as the old-time hotel will be taken down.

The drafts of the two leagues in all probability will be adopted at the meetings in New York, the procedure being more or less formal; nevertheless, the schedules for this season show a striking departure from those of previous years in that the season will get under way about one week later and will close later than has been the custom.

The fact that Boston will have Sunday baseball this year also put the committee to work on a new idea. The Sunday games in Boston will be the cause of quite a change.

The decision to open and close later was made at the December meeting. Apparently the magnates feel that the weather for the big opener is more likely to be propitious for the sport at the later in augural.

Local Amateur Golfer Near Top

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4.—J. R. Carlisle, Pittsburgh amateur, and his professional partner, Denis L. Sullivan, of Lima, O., finished among the leaders in the amateur-professional best ball handicap competition over the Miami Country Club course yesterday. They turned in a best-ball card of 34-37—71.

There was a triple tie for first place, Roland Saunders, Miami amateur, and his partner, Jack B. FEW WIN MORE THAN ONE PLACE ON STAR TEAMS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—With the Olympic games as an incentive to keen competition, few of America's athletes were able to win more than one place on the 1928 all-America athletic teams, selected annually for an athletic almanac by Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union.

JOIE RAY SELECTED

Only Lloyd Hahn, Boston A. A. middle-distance ace, who retired from competition after the Olympic games, Joie Ray, sensation of the year at the longer distances, and Frank Titterton, of the Millrose A. A., New York, winner of two national championships, placed twice on the team. Claude Bracey, of Rice Institute, Texas, scored a double in the sprints on the college team and Stanley Stokes, of Baton Rouge (La.) High School, won both hurdle places on the scholastic team.

Ray Barbuti, America's only winner of a flat race at the Olympic games, is placed on the college team, as well as the National aggregation along with Phil Edwards, of New York University; Frank Cuhel, of Iowa; Ed Hamm, of Georgia Tech; Sabin Carr, of Yale; Edmund Black, of Maine; Bob King, of Stanford, and Emmett Doherty, of Detroit City College. Frank Wykoff, California schoolboy sprint star, gained the unusual distinction of making both the all-America team and the scholastic team.

CARR GIVEN VAULT PLACE

In nearly every case the winners of the National championships received Ferris' nomination. Leader among those who broke the reign of the titleholders is Joie Ray, who was given the marathon place over Clarence DeMar, winner of the Boston marathon.

His Olympic victory, as well as a consistently fine showing, gave Sabin Carr the place in the pole vault although the National championship went to Lee Barnes, of Southern California. Hachi is placed on the team at 1,000 yards as well as the half-mile, although Ray Conger, of the Illinois A. C. won the title indoors.

John Kuck, Los Angeles A. C. star and winner of the Olympic shot put, is given the call over Herman Brix, of the University of Washington, who beat him in the trials. Creth Hines of Georgetown, winner of the javelin throw title, also yields to Charles Harlow, of the Los Angeles A. C.

Bucky Lawless boxes Jackie Horner at Buffalo and Joey Lacey tanks up with Vincent Sirec in New York. Tuffy Griffiths meets Billy Fiess and King Tut boxes Tony Sanders in Chicago. A bout between Henry Firpo and Dick Evans, signed as the windup of the next show in the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, has fallen through due to a disagreement between Evans and his manager. Another bout will be arranged to take its place.

Dominick Profio and Young Rudy, who recently staged a whale of a fight in McKeesport, are to be rematched for an early date.

Sig Keppen, Beaver Falls veteran who has been on the sidelines for some months, inaugurates a new campaign next Thursday night when he meets Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, in the semi-final to the Happy Atherton-Jackie Rodgers battle at McKeesport.

CASEYS CARD BOUTS

HEARST RIFLE COMPETITION TO BE KEEN

Evidence of the growing importance of the William Randolph Hearst Rifle competition among R. O. T. C. units throughout the country is shown in the order just issued by the Sixth Corps Area of the War Department, instructing that the marksmanship of competing teams in that area be taken into consideration in the selection of "honor schools."

Col. A. V. P. Anderson, U. S. A., is R. O. T. C. officer of this district.

The Hearst matches, authorized by the War Department and indorsed by the Secretary of War and Chief of Staff of the army, take in institutions in the United States, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippines.

413 TEAMS ENTERED

At the present time there are 413 teams entered in the competition. In many schools the rifle teams are assuming the same importance as major athletic teams, and are awarded letters by their institutions in the event of winning championships.

Competition this year will be keener than ever before. Practically every eligible school has entered teams. Those institutions not possessing rifle ranges are making efforts to secure facilities in the future so they may participate in years to come in these National matches.

The University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, took the 1928 championship for the senior units away from the University of Minnesota, which had held it for three years in succession. This gave the latter institution permanent possession of the National trophy.

MISSOURI MILITARY CHAMP

The Missouri Military Academy, Mexico, Mo., wrested the crown for the Military Schools' units from St. Johns, Deinfield, Wis., which had held the National championship for three years. The Missouri school is out to hold the title while the other military schools are in training to wrest it from them.

Walla Walla, (Wash.) High School is the present champion titleholder for the Junior units in high schools, having taken it from Waukegan, (Ill.) High School.

It is noted in the 1928 shoot that the individual champions in each division were members of the National championship teams, a condition that does not always maintain. They were E. M. Ainsworth, U. of Ark.; A. L. Brinton, Missouri Military Academy and Henry Buthgrus, Walla Walla High School.

Major Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding the Sixth Corps Area, is referee of the shoot.

Vet of Gloveless Baseball Days In Majors Dies

DANVERS, Mass., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Thorndike P. Hawks, who played baseball back in the early days of the National League, is dead at his home here.

Hawks played second base for the Troy, (N. Y.), club of the National League, in 1879, and on July 30 of that year, established two fielding records for second basemen that never have been equaled in the major leagues. On that day he accepted 18 chances without an error—one record. Twelve of the chances were put-outs—another record.

And those were the days when they didn't use gloves!

Hawks died at the age of 76. For several years he had been in ill health. He owned a drug store here for many years.

When Hawks was with Troy, such players as Adrian, (Pop) Anson, James White and Abner Dalrymple were starring in the National League.

Hawks had the reputation of being one of the fastest fielders in the game in those days. His lightning plays at second base brought heated disputes over umpires' decisions and finally resulted in having an umpire placed behind the pitcher's box, to be able better to watch fielding plays.

"I know that others will be after me, and are after me, right now, but I am satisfied to go along the way I have been going with Jacobs."

SCHMELING has done pretty well financially in four fights during a period of four months in this country. He has picked up about $23,000, to say nothing of what the future promises.

For his first American fight with Joe Monte he received $1,000; next he got $6,000 for his bout with Joe Sekyra; the Pietro Crooi match netted him $1,700, and his share of the receipts when he stopped Johnny Risko last Friday was a little more than $14,000.

THE MILLERS at Notre Dame, the Munns at Nebraska, the Poes at Princeton and others might be mentioned as outstanding instances in which several members of a family in succession won football fame at the same college, but the University of California cracks all records by presenting four brothers, all gridiron players, at one time. Last season Frank Gill, halfback, and Harry Gill, guard, were letter men on the varsity eleven, and Ralston Gill was a star halfback on the Freshman team. Now Sam Gill, a fourth brother, has entered the university, and he brings with him a reputation as a football player, made as quarterback on the Santa Maria High school team. And in addition there are two more Gills at home both of whom are football players and who are expected eventually to enter the University of California.

BRANNIGAN, ZIRINGER SAID TO HAVE BOXED 37 TIMES

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

HOW many times did Patsy Brannigan and Young Ziringer, star local bantamweight rivals of more than 20 years ago, clash in the ring?

There's a debatable subject. Ziringer has been dead since 1910. Patsy still is with us, working for the city. It is doubtful if an accurate record of their meetings is to be found anywhere.

Cy Siebert, of the North Side A. C., says they fought 37 times in all, some of the bouts being of the informal order while others were headliners at the clubs of this section. George Ziringer, oldest brother of Dutch, as Young Ziringer also was known, can account for more than 20 meetings. He has a partial list of his brother's ring fights, which is appended to this story.

WERE GREAT RIVALS

A notable feature of the rivalry between Brannigan and Ziringer was that Dutch would knock out with ease men who would give Brannigan tough fights, but, despite his superior fighting qualities and harder punch, he never could do much against Patsy's cleverness. And the fact that Patsy was a doughty little Irish redhead while Ziringer was a German gamester kept the fans constantly stirred up.

In later years, Tommy Phillips, a nephew of Brannigan, and Johnny (Kid) Bennett, a one-eyed gladiator of the South Side, put up such cyclonic fights against each other that they instantly were rematched, but they never came even close to approaching the many meetings between Brannigan and Ziringer. The late Harry Greb and Whitey Wenzel fought an even dozen times, but their rivalry was as nothing compared with that between Patsy and Dutch.

Fred (Young) Ziringer would be 38 years old if he were alive today. His mother, Mrs. Matilda Ziringer, died last year and was buried on Labor Day, 18 years to the day following the interment of her fighting son. His father, Fred Ziringer, still lives at the age of 67. He formerly worked for the city water department, from which position he is retired. A younger brother of the boxer, Dewey Ziringer, is on the police force, and a sister, Mrs. Lillian Reitzel, also survives him.

EAGLES DEFEAT THOMS RUN BY 2-1

SOCCER RESULTS

East Pittsburgh-Heidelberg postponed.

By TOM BIRKS.

The feature of the Chartiers Valley League, played yesterday on a slippery field, found the Heidelberg Eagles staging a second-half rally to tally twice and defeat the junior champions from Thoms Run by 2 goals to 1.

The players had considerable difficulty in keeping their feet and this stopped many scoring chances from being realized upon. Hart scored the winning goal a few minutes from the game's end with a good shot.

When the teams took the field, a good-sized crowd lined it. With Rizak and Goldback playing good defensive soccer, goals were hard to get. Savage led the Eagles' line well, but no scoring took place in the first half.

Thoms Run flashed the form early in the second half that won the junior championship. The game had only progressed three minutes when Prantice smashed the ball into the net past Rizak, giving The Run the lead.

This reverse stirred the Eagles, who, led by Savage, made tracks for the other end. Kramer and Kock kept out the boys for a time and then Urbanic tied the contest with a good shot. With matters evened, Heidelberg played hard and fast for its winning goal.

This came after 35 minutes of play. Hart found the ball on his toe, and shot it past Goldback for the winning marker. Both teams tried hard until the end, but could not get more shots into the net.

It was a real game and the fans left feeling the best team had won on the day's play. The lineup:

Bank Calls Hit Stocks

Local Market Narrow

STOCKS REACT AS BANK LOANS ARE CALLED

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The stock market turned reactionary today after an interval of strength. The selling probably was inspired by the calling of $20,000,000 in bank loans and the possibility that call money might rise above the renewal rate of 7 per cent. Professional traders showed a tendency to take profits prior to the publication of the stock exchange member loan statement, which is generally expected to show an increase of about $300,000,000, due, in part, to new listings of about $1,700,000,000 last month.

Speculative opinion is still divided over the possibility of an increase in the Bank of England or New York Federal Reserve rediscount rates this week, although the former rate is likely to be changed first. London dispatches indicated that money rates were easy there, leading to the possibility of further gold imports, with sterling hovering around the "gold import" point. Any increase in the New York call rate is likely to be temporary.

Railroad shares were heavily bought this morning as a result of the favorable character of the current traffic and earnings reports and the revival of merger rumors, but the gains were cut down or canceled in the early afternoon selling movement. Jersey Central quickly added 8 points to its 25-point gain of last week and Western Maryland, Reading and the Chicago and Alton issues were among those to move into New High ground. New York Central and Illinois Central sold down 3 points or more.

Buying in the industrial group was of a selective character. Advance Rumely, in which Wall Street hears there is a three-cornered battle for control, ran up 8 points to a new high at 74¼. Devoe & Raynolds, Congress Cigar, Westinghouse Electric, Collins & Aikman, Kelsey-Hayes Wheel and American Brake Shoe and Foundry advanced 4 to 6 points to new high levels for the year and then ran into profit-taking. Bethlehem Steel, which recently resumed dividends on the common stock, ran up more than 6 points to a new high at 93½, but United States Steel common sold down from 186½ to around 184, or a point or so below last week's close.

Selling pressure was particularly effective against such issues as Johns Manville, Allied Chemical, Certo Products and Bush Terminal, all of which were hammered down 4½ to 6 points below last week's closing quotations.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Raw sugar continued steady today at around 3.77c for Cuban duty paid. Sale of 37,000 bags for February shipment to an outport refiner was confirmed. This is unchanged from the past previous sale. There appeared to be continued good inquiry at the same level.

Raw futures opened unchanged to 3 points higher. They continued firm until prices showed net gains of 1 to 3 points, as result of covering and some trade buying, believed to be against spot sales. Demand tapered off on the upturn, however. Reactions followed under liquidation and hedge selling. The last at midday was about 1 point net higher.

In refined withdrawals are light. No new business reported. Prices unchanged at 5.10c for fine granulated.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The curb market moved irregularly higher today. Considerable selling came into the market during the forenoon, and the list churned about without definite trend, until the major activity concentrated on the upside toward midday.

Interest turned to trading in Standard Oil of Indiana shares, as the books close tomorrow for the annual meeting on March 7, when the Stewart-Rockefeller controversy will be settled. Sales today for purposes of voting the stock at the meeting had to be made for cash, to be completed by tomorrow. The stock opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 95, up 2, and moved up to 96½, but later reacted to around 93.

Checker Cab mounted nearly 4 points to a new high, and American Cynanamid B, Libbey Owens, U. S. Freight and United Cahbon made good gains. Ford of Canada moved up 8 points, and Ford, Ltd., was firm. Auburn was somewhat heavy. Aviation stocks were mostly quiet and irregular.

The utilities followed indefinite trends. After an early advance, Electric Bond and Shares dropped 5 points, American Super Power was heavy early, then developed strength. American Light and Traction and Associated Gas rose over a point each. In the mines Newmont made a moderate gain.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Bankers Feel Business Is Sound But Fear Stock Speculation.

By B. C. FORBES

I HAVE just been making the rounds of the biggest of New York's bankers. They have great confidence in the soundness of general conditions in this country; they have the strongest of faith in the Hoover administration; they look for substantial improvement in European countries, but almost to a man they express apprehension over stock market speculation.

THEY readily admit that our prosperity, our big annual savings, our increasing industrial efficiency, the public's more friendly attitude toward business and our position as a great creditor nation have warranted substantial increase in the market value of the shares of many enterprises. But they declare that the marking up process has been carried altogether too far in many instances and they fear that credit stringency will sooner or later—and probably sooner rather than later—bring about a rather drastic reversal in stocks which have been violently boomed.

They declare that much, if not most, of the activity on the New York Stock Exchange, on the New York curb and in other stock exchanges throughout the country, represents, not investment, but speculation, and that a great deal of it has emanated from persons of modest means who have never undergone the disastrous results of a bear market.

THIS same cautious stand is now being taken by not a few stock exchange firms. Let it be said to the credit of the great majority of stock exchange and curb brokers that they have been rigidly discouraging speculation on thin margins. Nearly all brokers are insisting, for their own protection as well as for the protection of the clients, that distinctly larger margins be put up than were demanded in the past. Nor are all commission houses fanning speculation.

THE head of the New York Stock Exchange house sends the writer a letter which well deserves publication. It will pay both brokers and customers to read this:

"My views on the responsibilities of a senior member of a stock exchange house, a banker, or an investment firm are such that I suppose I might be regarded as a radical.

"When a client sends to my firm a check, for say $10,000, he has placed in my hands a stick of dynamite which must be protected. That check may represent his whole stake or part of his stake. It is the duty of the broker or the banker to ascertain what proportion of the $10,000 the client can afford to risk.

"Suppose, for example, my client gives me an order to buy 100 shares of United States Steel—property valued at current prices at $18,500. My commission is $25.

"It is perfectly obvious that the responsibility of the broker is to protect the $18,500 investment, for the very simple reason that his $25 commission is insignificant as compared with the amount invested. If the broker fails to understand the disproportion between his small commission and his client's large investment, he is not deserving of the confidence reposed in him.

"I HAVE no patience with the bankers or others who are concerned about high brokerage loans for the reason that, from the beginning of the Coolidge administration to its closing days, the income of this great nation has increased from $80,000,000,000 to over $90,000,000,000 per year. In addition, hundreds of millions of dollars are now borrowed at the banks on stock exchange certificates which formerly were borrowed by families or individuals who sold out their properties, which properties found their way to stock exchange listing. It is merely a matter of bank bookkeeping.

"Also, I have no patience with the broker who feeds his clients each day on an artificial diet of tips. Even a selfish attitude of mind should prompt the broker to reason that if he protects his client he protects himself if he builds up his clients' equities, he builds up potential buying power, and if his clients prosper he will prosper.

"THE curse of the mad era in which we are living is that client and broker are too much in accord in a mad desire to get rich over night. If we become a nation of gamblers, we will meet the fate of all gamblers. If, on the contrary, we invest in stocks as carefully as we would buy a home; if we buy securities because of earnings rather than because of tips overheard from fellow strap-hangers in the subway, then, because of the inevitable prosperity of the country, we have nothing to fear.

"What I fear, in its ultimate effect on a nation-wide ownership of our industries, is the mad design on the part of brokers and clients to get something for nothing. If that is their philosophy, let us abandon all of the elaborate machinery of the stock exchange; let us cut down our overhead by discharging our statisticians and install roulette wheels. Such a system might interfere with the tourist traffic to pleasure resorts, but it would save carfare."

SUDDEN CALL OF LOANS HELD UNLIKELY

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

BANKERS have frequently expressed apprehension over the fact that the steady increase in brokers' loans to unprecedented levels has been brought about largely by the contribution of funds from non-banking sources.

They have stated that the money loaned on call by large industrial organizations is not accompanied by the sense of responsibility which is felt by the bankers.

THEY imply that large withdrawals of loans to be made by banking organizations would first be considered in the light of the possible effect on the security markets while the industrial organizations would remove funds without worrying about this important factor.

During the past year, from February 1, 1928 to January 30, 1929, total brokers' loans made by Federal Reserve member banks in New York City, increased 46 per cent. They grew from $3,816,000,000 to $5,559,000,000.

During the same period, the loans made for others, which means loans made by the banks for non-banking accounts, increased from $1,052,000,000 to $2,615,000,000, a gain of 149 per cent.

IN the course of the year the loans made by the New York banks for their own account decreased slightly, while those made for out of town banks increased to some extent. But, of the total increase of $1,743,000,000, the loans for others accounted for $1,563,000,000.

During January the share of this class of lenders was further increased. From January 2 to January 30, the total loans increased only $229,000,000, but the loans for others expanded $449,000,000, bankers making some withdrawals.

The history of stock prices and loans during the past year may be said to amount to this. The industrial organizations have financed the speculative and investment buying which has sent the prices of their stocks to unprecedented levels.

THERE is no reason to believe that this was planned in advance. It merely happened that changes in merchandising policies and improved transportation facilities have made small inventories possible for several years. This gave strong corporations greater surplus funds than they had in the past.

The active stock market made it possible for most companies to easily secure money needed for expansion by the sale of stock. It also made it possible to reduce funded debts and to eliminate many interest and sinking fund charges. The growing demand for money for stock market purposes op ned a very attractive field for the employment of the money secured in these ways, with a high degree of safety the money was kept liquio while still yielding a good return.

IT is difficult to see why call loans made by outsiders are more dangerous to the market than loans made by bankers. The call loans made by industrial corporations represent the investment of surplus funds. Part of these funds will be available for a long time. They will stay in call loans so long as the present high rates prevail. When these rates decline, it will mean that the market can get along with less money. Another part of these loans represents money which will be needed in the near future for expansion, the payment of extra dividends, the retirement of funded debt, or for carrying inventories over seasonal peaks.

There is no reason to believe that industry is more likely to call a dangerously large share of the loans on short notice than the banks. The wide diversification of the types of lenders is fairly good insurance.

Securities Probers Praise Curb Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Efficiency of the New York curb market is praised in the report of H. C. Hicks, of Utah, chairman of the committee on investigation of stock exchanges, National Association of Securities Commissioners, which has been investigating the curb market since 1926.

The committee recommended that the curb's listing committee make a special study of securities now listed or admitted to unlisted trading privileges, with a view to suspending or removing from trading privileges the securities of "all companies whose personnel, financial condition, lack of activity in trading, or lack of distribution do not warrant a continuance of trading."

BUGS BAER Says

LIPS THAT TOUCH LIQUOR.

THE following dialogue is reprinted from the shorthand notes of a Federal Court stenographer.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

The attorney for the defiance is crosscrissing two federal prohibition agents.

"Before you went to the Gumbo Club did you visit any other joints?"

"Sure. We stopped at several clubs."

"How many drinks did you have?"

"About 43."

At this statement the Judge fell off his stepladder. He had been busy papering the room with injunctions.

"How many did you have at the Gumbo?"

"About 10 more."

That made 26 drinks a man. And an extra one for emergencies.

The shorthand stenographer dashed out to have the contents of his fountain pen analyzed by a roving chemist.

While we may have scrambled the dictation a trifle, the conversation was legal. Fifty-three drinks divided among two earnest students of statistics are enough to make a pocket lighter look like the Aurora Borealis.

We would toss the case from court on the grounds that no man can count over three of the average drinks they peddle today.

One drink seems to be a clue, two are corroboration and six are irrefutable evidence.

When you blow your breath on the court you are pleading guilty.

A hip pocket is Mount Etna working day and night shifts.

A hiccough is the dictaphone that informs the jury that your stomach is turning state's evidence.

A red nose is the light that stops your traffic.

What we would like to know is why a bootlooter isn't guilty on the first drink.

Fifty-three indicates that you aren't sure whether you want to arrest him or drown him.

Probably the two agents hadn't finished their job. Maybe they were on their way to 57, a number always associated with pickles.

And how can you take a man to court unless he happens to be staggering your way?

We bow the skull to the two agents who could take 53 slugs of paint, oil and varnishes and still remember that somewhere on their suspenders there were brightly polished badges.

The Brown Towhee

No. 3—How to Approach a Denizen of Field and Stream

This is our regular Monday Morning Hour, devoted to the better understanding of birds. Topic: The Brown Towhee.

In approaching the Brown Towhee it is best to wear the official field uniform of the Brown Towhee Club, which consists of:

1. The long-billed Towhee cap.
2. Blouse with letters "B. S. C." (Bird Studiers' Association.)
3. Padded pants.
4. Club emblem and genuine glass Towhee egg.
5. Towhee mitten.

Remember in stalking the Towhee that the Towhee will keep his eye on you, you may be sure. So when approaching do not move your hands or feet. After a minute you may tiptoe home, but do not wave your hands about or point. Does he seem a little more interesting now that you have found out for yourself how tame and friendly he is?

Be Courteous Driver And Prevent Accidents

That should be the slogan of the Courteous Drivers' League, recommended to be an organization within the Pittsburgh Motor Club by Dr. Thomas Heard, Jr., president of the club, at its annual meeting.

It is a slogan that should be blazoned throughout the country and especially throughout Allegheny County, in which, according to the report of the coroner's office, just issued, there were 26 deaths from automobile accidents in January.

Every automobile driver can be a member of the Courtesy Club whether he be a member of the Pittsburgh Motor Club or not. If he resolve to be a courteous driver he will be a member. If he resolve to be a courteous driver he will be a careful driver. If he resolve to be a courteous driver he will be a saver of life.

We admire a man who, by presence of mind, saves the life of another. Equally admirable is the man who effects the same end by preparedness of mind. With your mind set to be courteous as you drive your car you will always do just what you would have the other fellow perform with relation to your safety.

Courtesy Prevents Accidents.

If you don't have the other fellow in mind—his rights, equal to your own, as well as his possible carelessness—all the time, you are opening the way to many accidents. And if he be careless, courtesy on your part, rather than an explosion, will teach him the better lesson. Fire kindles fire.

When you meet a man in your home you do not act like a boor. Why should a position at the wheel of your car alter your politeness toward the same man when you meet him on the road in his car?

Adopt the golden rule as your code of driving. Make courtesy your guide rather than a strict demand for your rights. Having the right of way will not bring you back to earth should you be dispatched by somebody who disregarded your right. Nor him should he be the unfortunate one and you the fortunate.

Courtesy Prevents Accidents.

Be a gentleman in your car as well as out. Join the Courtesy Club.

The thought behind it has been of marvelous benefit elsewhere.

As Nature Made Them

And a Little Bit More.

FASHIONABLE BATHERS ON BEACH IN FRANCE.

In that immortal work, "Don Quixote," Sancho Panza, the fat, faithful servant of the knight, says, "We are all as God made us, and sometimes worse."

This picture reminds you of that. From crinoline skirts down to the ankles, ruffles around their neck, women and men of our age have come to this.

The picture, taken on the shore of the Mediterranean at Antibes, in France, shows well-known ladies and gentlemen of our period enjoying themselves.

If the big African game from the Gaboon region could come to Antibes and see this, especially if the big gorillas of the Gaboon could come and see this group of their highly advanced human cousins, they might well say, "Well, after all, there isn't so MUCH difference."

Arms and legs, chest and shoulders, as much as possible UNCOVERED, that is the rule of today.

But who has a right to criticize? Not an old-fashioned editor, certainly.

If these ladies and gentlemen and those that look on believe that their legs and arms are a pleasure to look at, then why not SHOW them?

There are some who think that something should be kept in reserve, and that, in the language of the old lady mentioned by Montaigne, a wife should "take off her modesty only with her petticoat," but not take off her petticoat in mixed company.

However, all that is OLD stuff.

This is the NEW stuff, and if you don't like it, you need not go to Antibes.

Tales That Are Told

Easily Remembered

UNDOUBTEDLY, the big woman with the rather fierce expression who was waiting outside the stage-manager's private office was in a very bad temper.

"Please, sir," began the boy who had taken her message into the manager, "Mrs. Tempestly has called and wants to know why you haven't written to her since the audition she had—"

"Tell her," interrupted the busy manager, "that she simply didn't come up to scratch."

A few minutes later the boy returned to the office once again.

"She says she has now!" was his ominous message.

Too True

TOWARDS the end of dinner little Tommy suddenly put down his spoon and pushed away his plate of uneaten pudding.

His mother was quick to notice this, and glanced at her son in great astonishment, for he usually managed to eat everything placed before him.

"Why, Tommy boy," she cried, "whatever's the matter? You look mournful—didn't you want your pudding?"

"Yes," was the small boy's wistful answer, "that's just it. I'm more'n full!"

Recollections

AN absent-minded man called upon his equally absent-minded doctor, and they spent a pleasant evening together, playing chess and exchanging political views.

Finally came the hour of parting, and the visitor exclaimed:

"You know, doctor, I came here specially for something. Oh, yes, now I recall it. Our maid has fainted and we want you to see her right away."

"That reminds me," replied the doctor. "Your wife wanted you on the telephone a while ago. The maid has passed away."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

RADIO is a great blessing in a lot of homes, but it ain't always properly received. In apartment houses, you know, like they often build 'em nowadays, you can hear a pin drop even if you're two floors away from the pin. So when a family sets its radio yelling real loud about something the families above and below them don't care nothing about, there's sometimes a little misunderstanding, and even a little informal shooting.

There was a guy that lived in Los Angeles in an apartment house, and he says to his friend, "Say, I bought my apartment that I used to rent, and after while I won't have to pay rent at all. And the landlord took my radio set for the first payment."

"That's funny. I thought your landlord was a good business man."

"Oh, he is! He lives up over me and his oldest tenant lives under me, and he made me agree to make such heavy payments every month from now on that I can't afford to buy another radio."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

WANT to get things done?

Want to put your life across?

THEN COMMAND THE SITUATION!

That doesn't mean that you should act like a combination of Napoleon, Mussolini and Alexander the Great.

It does mean that you should know what you intend to do before you try to do it.

Don't just wobble along taking things as they come.

Get ready for things BEFORE they come.

Decide first what you want to do with yourself—

What goal you're driving for—

Don't leave it up to God or Fate or your family—

Make your own plan.

And keep making plans—

Plan each hour, each day, each week.

Say to yourself—"I am going to accomplish certain things this day"—

THEN ACCOMPLISH THEM.

This can't be done merely by wanting to do it—

It can't be done by merely "making up your mind"—

You must sink your spiritual fangs into the job—

You must fasten yourself so firmly to the situation that nothing can shake you off.

You must transform yourself into a veritable bulldog.

"But suppose, in spite of all that, things interfere with one's plans?" you say.

Things won't interfere half as much as you anticipate if you have A COMMAND OF THE SITUATION.

Things interfere with our plans, because we let them.

If you have decided to get to a place at 4:57 you can get to that place at 4:57, barring acts of Providence. People may call you on the phone, friends may drop in—but you can put such interruptions courteously but firmly to one side if you have taken COMMAND OF THE SITUATION.

Life opens amazingly to the man who COMMANDS HIS SITUATIONS.

He may not be very talented or powerful, but if he really knows what he's about and never allows himself to be sidetracked, he can accomplish almost everything he sets his mind upon.

MOST PEOPLE ARE FUZZY MINDED.

They have no definite ideas, no definite plans.

They "trust to luck."

Organized minds cut through such fuzziness as a sharp knife cuts through custard.

ORGANIZE YOUR MIND.

Organize even the slightest, most prosaic details of your day's work.

Know what you're going to do—and how and when you're going to do it.

Stop thinking like a grasshopper—skipping from side to side, swayed by every impulse.

BEGIN TO THINK LIKE A MAN!

COMMAND YOUR SITUATIONS.

ARE WE ACCIDENTS?

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE planetesimal theory of the origin of the solar system has been said to support the idea that the human race may be unique in the universe. This idea, in turn, is supposed to furnish an explanation of the peculiar attention which all the great religious systems assume to be given to man and his affairs by the universal Creator.

The discoveries of astronomy have never been welcomed by religious bodies in so far as such discoveries tended to widen man's conception of the extent of the habitable universe. Giordano Bruno was burned at the stake for teaching that there were many inhabited worlds among the stars. There seems to have been a kind of jealousy in this; if God had so many children to look out for, scattered through boundless space, those on the earth could no longer claim his exclusive care!

When, two or three centuries later, proof of the enormous extent of the universe had become so overwhelming that theologians were forced to accept it, an attempt was made to reconcile this with the older conceptions by claiming that God governed the universe and the inhabitants of its many worlds from his seat on a throne situated in a great central orb. There was much emotion among devout followers of various sects when a German astronomer (unintentionally) helped this idea along by affirming that the great central orb was visible as the star Alcyone in the Pleiades. He meant that the star was a gravitational center, but many preachers made it a text for imposing, almost Miltonic sermons on the circling of worlds around suns and of suns in majestic procession around the throne of God—now discovered to human vision!

Now—if we really know anything definite on the subject—we know that the great physical center is not a single sun, or an orb of any kind, but an innumerable mass of suns, aggregated in and around the constellation Sagittarius. And (far more disconcerting to the theological view) we also know, apparently, that the universe itself is multiplex, consisting not only of our own almost illimitable stellar system, but of untold thousands, or perhaps millions, of others, lying at incomprehensible distances all around it, and each having its own gravitational center of close assembled suns.

In attempted contemplation of such vastness, even theological theories must stand aghast, paralyzed by the overwhelming immensity of the theme.

It is no wonder, then, that a return should be made to the original idea of a sole home for the favored creations of God's care, a unique world amidst the multitudinous orbs of the congregated universes, a one and only Eden and a one and only purgatory. So the planetesimal theory, by suggesting that the formation of a system of planets like ours is an occurence by its nature extremely rare, if indeed it has ever happened more than once in our stellar system, has a strong theological appeal.

Bible Passages

"Words of the Lord"

(Psalm 12)

HELP, Lord; for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from among the children of men.

They speak vanity every one with his neighbor; with flattering lips and with a double heart do they speak.

The Lord shall cut off all flattering lips, and the tongue that speaketh proud things;

Who have said, with our tongue will we prevail; our lips are our own; who is lord over us?

For the oppression of the poor, for the sighing of the needy, now will I arise, saith the Lord; I will set him in safety from him that puffeth at him.

The words of the Lord are pure words; as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times.

Thou shalt keep them, O Lord, thou shalt preserve them from this generation for ever.

The wicked walk on every side, when the vilest men are exalted.

The Rhyming Optimist

Possessions

WHEN I take stock of all I own,
I find no monarch on his throne
Has more of wealth;
For I have zeal to toil all day,
With love and laughter on my way,
And hope and health.

Good friends are mine whose faith always
Lends joy and courage to the days
That might, without
Their tender thoughtfulness to bless
The path with care and kindliness,
Dawn dark with doubt.

And so no envy stirs my heart
For those who play a prouder part,
Since all this is good,
This cheer and promise ring me round,
And for it all my life is crowned
With gratitude.

O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Crossing the usual choppy channel from Calais to Dover was no trick. It was so smooth a bright young man wearing an equally bright tie observed: "I could have made it on one foot." And there is something cozy and cheerful about the trains to what Londoners call The City.

But after the lovely English countryside, the collective ugliness of London stands out sharply, although its solemnity has a grandeur. London's voice has the thin smothered accent of antiquity—of eternal decay. Built on fever-spawning marshes, once slit by oozing rivulets, it stands paradoxically like Gibraltar—a majestic monstrosity.

An Englishman is not depressed by the sudden whisk from the volatile warmth of Paris to the clammy mugginess of London. It is his dish, but for the rest of us it seems doomsday—the end of the world. And there would be one of those nasty fogs through which to grope. And choke.

But with lunch at Simpson's and the cheerful company of Frazier Hunt, the world became—catch my British idioms!—a little bit of all right again. Too, a London hotel is always a stirring adventure, with glorified bellhops in braided cutaways, page boys in tambourine caps and monocled clerks. Fruity, my word!

While in the bath one of the doleful street cries seeped out of the fog. It was the voice of a street singer who plants himself under the window and sings until you toss him a coin. This one serenaded with an old Coster song, each verse of which concluded with: "And poor 'Arry has the hiccups!"

The visiting writer to London is assured a Rotarian welcome. He is interviewed and asked to sundry luncheons, teas and dinners. In most instances it is a subtle bait for trade lasts. A properly fed and well-entertained writer is not so likely to unsheath critical claws when he writes his pieces.

The left hand traffic rule, coupled with the fog, makes crossing the street rather perilous. Twice today while skipping the gutter I was within plucking distance of the well-known harp. Missing one set of wheels by an eyelash, the driver called out mockingly: "Another jolly American hustler, eh!"

* * *

There is a hurried impression London enjoys a greater prosperity than a year ago. Of course, the King's long illness adds a somber touch, and employment and its resultant government dole are still pronounced, but there is more activity in the shops. If there are not fewer beggers they are less persistent. Only one tackled me. He requested "'arf-a-bob," got a tuppence and did he squawk?

* * *

I missed seeing the Duke of York by only a minute or so in Burlington Arcade, and found a haberdashery shop in a fearful flutter. The Duke had just departed and the clerk who waited on him was in such a state of flibber-jibbets he was fit to be tied. So much so I completely forgot what I came for. And I cannot remember now. Something seems to be getting the matter with my mind anyway.

* * *

One of those bonneted Cockney ladies, reeking with the aroma of strong ale, buttonholed me at Charing Cross to buy a sprig of heather from her tray. I gave her a small coin but declined the bouquet. "Hi'm no begger, Guvner!" she said with surprising vigor, and so I had to continue on all spruced up with heather.

One of the toys hawked along the curb is a figure resembling Charlie Chaplin, which, when wound up, paddles along with its splay feet in a characteristic way, lifting a hat quickly and twirling a bamboo cane. It is amusing, but, although Chaplin is a London boy, for some reason it is called "Hector."

The Englishman and his club are as indissolubly linked as, well, Park and Tilford. Dining tonight in a club whose membership is restricted to Britishers, the stiffness was like that of the dress shirt of one of those drawing room mustache fixers. No one laughed and smiles were frozen. I left before the crying commenced.

The Moran and Mack foolishness has swept London like a hurricane. It has become the flapper patter, and every music hall has its "I-wouldn't-know-about-that" impersonator.

O, yes, I remember now what I wanted in the Burlington Arcade haberdashery. It was one of those black silk handkerchiefs like Noel Coward wears. It would look dandy in Roy Howard's milk white overcoat.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

GET out and do some walking.

It takes outdoor exercise to keep you fit.

You complain you can't stand outdoor weather as you did once.

Probably this is true.

But if so, it should convince you that there is something wrong with your system.

Circulation is unbalanced some way and needs equalizing.

Even for short trips you use your car.

Your home is kept in a high temperature—your car is heated.

You have very little air in your sleeping room.

You don't feel right.

You have lost your snap.

You have less and less interest in everything which requires you to get away from your well-heated apartments.

What you need is more fresh air, both day and night.

Fresh air would do you more good than medicine.

Try leaving your automobile at home and walking back and forth between your home and your place of employment.

You should do this because you need air as well as exercise.
